AHM strives for a 7% tax hike

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Before council can relieve the burden of a steep tax increase this year, more commercial and industrial development assessment must be attained in Anson, Hindon and Minden, says Reeve Ray Moore.

"Seven per cent is tying us down pretty tight, but I really think we should attempt to reach that figure," Moore said in a presentation to council Thursday morning.

The reeve's comments foreshadowed council's preliminary budget discussions during a closed meeting later that day. He read from a prepared statement.

"I have gone through a possible synopsis of a budget target figure of only a seven per cent increase in taxes," he said. This would target the municipal budget at $3.325-million.

Although fellow councillors agreed on the importance of keeping a tight budget, there are a few hurdles to leap before this could be achieved.

In reviewing council's draft revenues and expenditures for 1989,

Moore noted the municipality did not receive $150,000 in projected provincial conditional and unconditional grants. Such cut-backs mean more money must be raised locally.

"It appears that each year the burden of municipal government is being transferred onto the backs of our local taxpayers," he said.

"Payments by federal and provincial agencies in lieu of taxes is eroding, and not even keeping pace with inflation or our projected budget."

While anticipating its budget, council must also keep in mind "the million and half dollars for education" and an increased county levy to cover provincial initiatives on waste management, official plan, economic development and restructuring.

Moore believes an increase in commercial and industrial development assessment is needed to help make this year's budget increase more palatable. "To get this, we need to encourage those types of entrepreneurs to locate and build here," he told fellow councillors.

"Housing and affordable housing," he added, "will come at its own pace."

Sparks fly as developers challenge new AHM rules

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Opponents of two development restrictions recently adopted by Minden council have asked for the resignations of the Deputy-Reeve and members of the Planning Advisory Committee.

A petition signed by 155 people protesting the new bylaws was presented to council last Thursday by Larry Hughes, the contractor excavating three properties along the main street. The bylaws were passed by council in response to their concerns over these properties.

Development along the Bobcaygeon Road has been held up, and "I don't think this council has done anything to allow development to run smoothly," Hughes told council.

"Some of us do have to work for a living, and we need jobs," said Hughes. Rather than go to the city for a job, "I think we're entitled to work right here in Minden."

Hughes says council's passing of two bylaws proves they are carrying out a vendetta against local developers.

The municipality now demands that a site plan agreement between the developer and the municipality be in place before any commercial lot can be rezoned, forcing any new property owner to abide by the site plan if the lot is sold.

Martin Lumber may be back in business

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

It looks like the 125 laid-off workers at the G.W. Martin Lumber Co. operation in Harcourt may soon be back to work.

On Monday, President Norman Laine reached a conditional sale agreement on the last of the once mighty company's timber operations. The buyer, Robert Bury and Co. (Canada) Ltd., is expected to take possession on April 10.

"We're not going to celebrate until April 10," says Laine, who has known tentative deals to fall through before.

The Harcourt deal is conditional on the transfer of timber limits and timber volume agreements. Sixty per cent of the timber Martin Lumber harvests in Harcourt is on crown land, and the Ministry of Natural Resources must agree to these agreements being continued before Bury will finalize the purchase.

"We don't know what way the MNR is going to go," says Laine. He hopes that because 125 jobs are at stake, continued logging will be allowed.

Negotiations with Bury have been underway for several weeks, while another prospective buyer has expressed interest—but no commitment—for several weeks, Laine says.

"We certainly think the price we're getting for it is low but in today's market we thought we'd have a hard time getting a better offer," he said Monday. "But it's a relatively satisfactory conclusion for everyone. It preserves the sawmill and 100 or so jobs."

Layoffs at the Harcourt sawmill and planing mill began last June, when the company decided to process only the lumber on its lots. Approximately 125 workers, plus independent loggers, were affected.

"This makes my day feel a lot better," says Wilberforce's Rodney Bowen, who was laid-off in October and profiled in the January 21 story on Martin Lumber. He learned about the sale through The Echo.

"It will be a big relief for the whole area," Bowen says. "The businesses depend on the people working there."

He believes about 75 per cent of the workers will return to the mills, the others having found work elsewhere.

For him, it means he and his family

Severances will kill lake, cottagers fear

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

By holding off the final decision on a rezoning, Minden council is giving members of the Bat Lake Ratepayers Association a chance to prove that further development may harm the lake.

Monique Yates has applied for a rezoning from rural to residential limited services, and to the county's Land Divisions Committee for severances to create four lots.

During Thursday's meeting, realtor Jim Gilligan presented the rezoning proposal to council on behalf of the applicant. Yates' entire property has about 2,000 feet lake frontage, but only 900 feet can be developed. A previous severance split her 42-acre property into two lots. This recent severance application for a 20-acre parcel would create lots which are well within the municipality's 132-foot frontage minimum, Gilligan said.

The lots have also received septic approval from the health unit. And all the property in question is "high, dry land," said Gilligan.

If there are concerns that Yates will develop the property in future years, Gilligan said the remaining

1,100 feet of lake-front would not receive approval for any development because it is lowland and subject to flooding.

Despite these assurances, a number of people objected to the rezoning.

Tim Koivusalo, president of the ratepayers association, represents all but two of the lake's 14 cottages. He tried to convey to council that the water quality of Bat Lake is already deteriorating, and any further development could kill the lake.

At 100 acres, Bat Lake is very small, as well as shallow, Koivusalo said. With no connecting streams or rivers, "it's land-locked."

Present cottagers "enjoy quiet sports," such as wind-surfing, canoeing and swimming.

Still, "water quality has been consistently low." Tests performed by the Ministry of the Environment in 1988 showed that it's an enriched lake with low clarity caused by a high density of algae.

Koivusalo also relayed some of his observations made during the 20 years he's cottaged on the lake. During that time, the number of cottages increased from four to 14, and water quality has deteriorated to the point

Grenville Laverne Stamp

County mourns a fighter

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The man who represented the rallying cry for the promised but yet-to-be-built chronic care unit died last Wednesday in a Peterborough Hospital. He was 57.

Grenville Stamp's name was often evoked as proof of Haliburton's need for local chronic care beds. "Bring Grenville home" needed no explanation for many.

In 1979, Mr. Stamp was paralyzed from the neck down after a car accident. After spending a couple of years in Toronto hospitals, he was brought home to live in West Guilford. As his needs grew, however, he had to be transferred to Peterborough Civic Hospital because there were no facilities in Haliburton.

When funds were being raised for the 18-bed unit, Mr. Stamp would spend his visits home on the telephone, organizing events and soliciting support.

"People knew that the chronic care facility was very important to him," says his son, Derrell, who wrote the eulogy for Friday's service, conducted by Rev. John Phillips. "He was very frustrated. When stories came out in The Echo (that the project was stalled), you just hated to break the news to him."

People still fighting for the unit can learn a lot from Mr. Stamp. "He had tremendous determination and a will to live, even after his injuries," says Derrell. "He went through a lot of serious operations and you wondered how much more he could go through, but he always came back. He just never gave up."

However, as many people often forget, there was a lot more to Mr. Stamp than just his accident.

He was born in Minden in 1942, the son of Cecil and Hattie Stamp (nee Morrison, of Eagle Lake). The family moved to the West Guilford area when he was 12, and at 18, he got a job with Haye and Company, a lumber operation on KENNIS Lake. (Now the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve.)

"During that time he also played baseball in a local league and was involved in minor hockey," says Derrell, who adds his father was also an avid hunter and fisherman. "After he left the mill, he worked at General Motors for three years but he didn't like that because he was away from home."

So he came back, bought a tandem truck and started his own business. He also opened the laundromat in West Guilford, convincing several local camps to let his staff do the washing. Hiring local women, "they worked every night of the week all night long."

Business was good and as Mr. Stamp had never forgotten his ties to Minden, he opened up a laundromat there as well. In the same building was the Minden Times, which Mr. Stamp eventually bought with Ron Gambell in September 1978. The following June, the paper was sold to its present owner, Jack Brezina.

Accident in the fog

In July of 1979, Mr. Stamp was driving to work one foggy morning when his car collided with a tandem truck.

Those next months are a blur for the Stamp family, who spent most of their time with Mr. Stamp. Derrell can remember one visit when his father was more upset about a room-mate, whose wife had deserted him, than he was about himself.

For the next seven years, Mr. Stamp's wife, Fay, and children

Craig, Derrell, Wade and Lynne helped to take care of him at home.

During this time, the communities held various fundraising activities. Their efforts were instrumental in purchasing a van, and the Rotary Club then donated the cost of the acts of generosity bestowed on Mr. Stamp.

"The heart of the community really went out to him and the family," says Derrell. "He was always a very loving and caring person and he wasn't afraid to show it. He was just really admired by everybody for a lot of different things."

One special friend was Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins, who worked very hard to try to ensure Mr. Stamp could be taken care of closer to home.

Mr. Stamp leaves behind his wife, Fay, his four children, daughters-in-law Sherrie and Kim, grandchildren Jeff, Greg, Darcy and Lana, and siblings Brant, Marjorie, Eunice, Lyle, Donelda. He was predeceased by sister Sharon. Spring interment is at St. Peter's Cemetery, Maple Lake.

NEW LBMAO PRESIDENT

Malcolm (Mac) Gadway, is the Lumber and Building Materials Association of Ontario's new president for 1990. Gadway was first elected to the Board of Directors in 1981 to represent the members of the Central District and prior to 1981 actively served on several LBMAO standing committees.

Since attending the University of Guelph, Mac has been involved with Schwanndt HomeCare in Harcourt and Gooderham. He has served as President of the South Algonquin Kinsmen, been on the board of directors of the Victoria-Haliburton PC Association and most recently on the Board of the Haliburton County Development Corporation.

Gadway and his wife Nancy live in Harcourt with their two sons, Morgan 4, and Barclay 1. The LBMAO has been serving the needs of approximately 1000 retailers and their suppliers since 1917.

ly can start making plans again. "Now we can stay in Wilberforce. That's very good news."

Laine doesn't know when the mills will be back in operation. "I don't know what the company's business plans are but they've indicated they'll run it as we did," he says. The log procurement program will begin shortly after the closing of the agreement.

Ironically, once the deal is finalized and the laid-off workers return, it will be Laine who must begin looking for another job. "I imagine into May I'll have to look into other areas. You expect that in business. Every job isn't guaranteed to last forever."

However, there is still the problem of what to do with the 32,000 square foot office building on the Elephant Lake Road, which also has access to Benoit Lake. (The company also owns lakefront land in downtown Huntsville which it hopes to sell soon.)

"There are no leads on the building at all," says Laine. Provincial and federal ministries, as well as foreign companies, have been approached but because of the isolated location, there have been no takers. "It isn't over till it's over."

Although he is glad a buyer for the Harcourt operation has finally been found, it's with mixed emotions Laine views the deal. "When we first signed the deal, there was a great sense of relief but there was also a sense of losing something. It's almost like losing family here."

The former Martin empire was started by Whitney Martin in the 1920s and passed on to his son Grenville in 1958. It was Grenville Martin who built it into one of Ontario's largest timber companies, and after Grenville died in a plane crash in 1984, his family decided to sell. Buyers of other operations include Lajambe Forest Products, Columbia Forest Products, Tembec Forest Products and Thomco Pallet and Box.

The Bury company is associated with Commonwealth Plywood Co., "Canada's largest supplier of hardwood veneer which also owns a number of sawmills in Eastern Canada."

Surplus won't be reserved for arena

by SUSAN GROBER

Staff Reporter

An almost $21,000 surplus left over from the 1989 budget of Anderson, Hindon and Minden's recreation committee won't be set aside in reserve.

At Thursday's meeting, council decided against granting a request from the committee that the $20,886 surplus be allocated to a capital reserve fund for this summer's arena repairs.

Councillor Bob Sisson sits on the committee, and said fellow members want to ensure there will be money to pay for the extensive repairs needed.

Reeve Ray Moore said the municipality can't afford to set aside the money, especially since council is aiming to keep this year's tax increase down to only seven per cent.

Moore also pointed out the facility is already "costing us a $50,000 to $60,000 deficit to run that arena (each year)."

The committee has considered ways of making a profit, or breaking even, on the arena, said Sisson. "The only way to do it is just to close the doors, as far as I'm concerned."

squeeze," said Moore. "Since that time, their dumps have been closed."

Waste management studies are required to ensure that landfill sites comply with recent Ministry of the Environment standards.

Faraday will be involved in the Hastings County master plan, but would need an alternate landfill site until the plan can be implemented.

"The township produces approximately 3,600 tonnes of waste annually," reads the letter from Faraday's clerk. "Would you be willing to accept waste from outside your municipality if this was acceptable to the Ministry of the Environment?"

Minden refuses Faraday's garbage

by SUSAN GROBER

Staff Reporter

Minden council has decided a call for help has come too late for the Township of Faraday's landfill crisis.

Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry suggested council give "an emphatic no" in response to a letter from the township—located near Bancroft in Hastings County—requesting the use of Minden's waste disposal sites.

Reeve Ray Moore pointed out Faraday previously rejected an offer to join the Haliburton County Waste Management Master Plan. "Now the MOE has put on the

On March 10, Richard Austin, 43 from Dudley Twp., Haliburton was charged with Impaired Operation and Refusing a breathalyzer. There was no accident.

ACCOMMODATION FRAUD

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Jonathan J. Hall, 23, last known address of 535 Mary St. E. Whitby, Ontario for Fraud. The arrest warrant stems from an investigation dating back to July '89 when Hall is alleged to have tendered a cheque in payment of accommodation. Anyone with information as to the whereabouts of Johnathon Hall is asked to call the Ontario Provincial Police at Minden, 286-1431 or your local Police Force.

INJURY ACCIDENT

Two snow vehicle operators were injured on Kushog Lake at approx. 7:30 p.m., March 10. Duncan McConnach, 61, had apparently stopped his machine on the lake when he was struck by a second machine operated by James McConnach, 21. Both persons were taken to hospital, Duncan to Haliburton Hospital and James to Lindsay Hospital. The investigation into this accident continues.

SUNNY DAYS AND COLD NIGHTS

Icy spots on the roadways continue to be a problem for drivers. The sunny days have caused the roads to be, for the most part bare and dry. This makes for good driving conditions except for those areas which are prone to shade. The running water hitting the shaded areas turns to ice and continues to be a problem for drivers. When driving take time to think about the road ahead and be wary of those shaded areas.

Seek funds from ministry, not developers, Bradamore urges

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Suggestions on improving main street development with ministry funding were offered to Minden council by developer Brad Bradamore.

Relaying his advice on Thursday, Bradamore said he's unhappy with council's handling of current development projects along the booming area of main street between the Rockcliffe Hotel and Home Hardware. However, council expressed doubt the former chief building official's ideas are feasible.

Bradamore said council could apply to the Ministry of Transportation for 50 per cent of the cost for items such as storm sewers, catch basins, curbs, and sidewalks, "if they really want to help with the proposed development and existing development."

Then council "could kick in a little from the general coffers and assess individual land owners for this service all the way from the Home Hardware to Nancy Keetch's property under (the Ontario) Neighbourhood Improvement Program," Bradamore added.

These funds could be debentured, Bradamore suggested, with taxpayers covering outstanding costs each year.

"This would service the whole area and would look (uniform), opposed to each one doing a different concept."

Reeve Ray Moore said funding isn't easy to come by, adding that isn't fair to expect taxpayers to cover development costs. He explained the developers "are working to pay their own fair share of sewers and sidewalks as part of their development costs."

Disappointed with this response, Bradamore accused council of being closed-minded to new ideas which could be beneficial to the township. "If the want is there, this council can get their act in gear and do it right away."

"I don't feel we're giving up," answered Moore. "You have to look at others in the community. When the development is coming along that road, I think it's inherent that those developers should pay for the services."

Later in the meeting, Councillor Mike Maher disputed Bradamore's statement that the Ministry of Transportation will cover half the costs. "It's not 50 per cent funding, and it's not feasible for Bradamore to believe it." He said the ministry has budgetary restraints like everyone else, and can't provide funding for all projects. "It's not as easy as Bradamore thinks."

Student speakers would do well following acting career

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

DRAMA TALENT SCOUTS should have attended last Tuesday night's public speaking contest at the Haliburton Legion. Some of the speakers did just as well as actors.

The annual competition was between 18 Grade 4 to 10 students. Awards were given to the winners in each of the three categories: Grade 4-6, Grade 7-8 and Grade 8-10. The top three winners in those categories received cash prizes from Branch 129 of $25, $15 and $10 respectively.

It was Luke Barker of Wilberforce's deadpan delivery which brightened his delightful speech on a rather unpleasant topic—sewers—and earned him top honours in the Grade 4-6 category.

"They say that after 20 to 30 years, you don't even notice the smell," Luke said, with only a trace of a smile on his face as the audience broke out into laughter. "But it's like any other job," he concluded, "you wouldn't want to get in over your head."

Those not tickled by that line of work could set their dreams on the accomplishments of Walt Disney, as told by Todd Hoare. By working hard and being innovative, Disney built his small studio into an empire. And Todd won second place.

Anglicans might want to get a hold of John Phillips' speech about his father, Rev. John Phillips. Obviously the former motorcyclist and teacher has done something right because John's third-place speech was full of admiration and humour.

Other competitors in this category were Tim Hughes talking about the evils of television, Bronwen Winsley on the agonies of being short and Meggan Winsley on her Auntie Marg, an inspiration to all.

Mark Morissette was one cool dude when he gave his winning speech on, you've got it, the art of being cool. The senior J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School student even was kind enough to give pointers about The Look and The Walk (The Cool Strut). But his no-nonsense and from-the-heart underlying message was "Being cool is being your natural self."

When students have trouble accepting the goodness of their natural self, thoughts can turn to suicide, said Charlene Simms in her second-place speech. Teen suicide is a serious problem and everyone's help is needed to prevent it from getting worse.

What's in a name? Jonathan Bishop says a lot more than people think. All names mean something and are important parts of people's identities—so think twice before you make fun of someone's name, says the third-place winner.

Other speakers in the Grade 7-8 category were Sarah Levis about the enduring qualities of musicals, Jodi Mueller about teachers' good qualities and Ryan Cummings' comparison of living conditions today with those during the Depression.

Do you know what it's like to give a speech? Dawn Rowan had the sweaty palms, nervous laugh and jitters all down to a tee in her speech—on speeches. Her understanding of the competitor's plight earned her top prize in the Grade 9-10 category.

'They say that after 20 to 30 years, you don't even notice the smell,' says a deadpan Luke Barker in his speech on sewer workers. 'But it's like any other job, you wouldn't want to get in over your head!'

Everyone knows about commercials, but it was Dawn Hebert who managed to make people see the funny side of these annoying television pests. The way the second-place winner made it sound, commercials are better than the shows they interrupt.

There was nothing funny about Jenna Stutt's speech on illiteracy. All of society is afflicted when someone can't read and this third-place speech forced everyone to care about the issue. Jenna obviously did.

Other competitors were Laura Chumbley speaking about parents' reactions when teenagers get their driver's licence, Larissa Gray on some humorous antidotes to stress, and Marc MacKinnon, who not only talked about nerds, but looked and acted like one as well. He would win first-prize in the costume category—if there was one.

The top winners from each category will go on to the Zone competition on March 25.

Women unite—there's nothing to gain but friendship and fun

"As we come marching, marching, unnumbered women dead/Go crying through our singing, their ancient cry for bread/Small art and love and beauty their drudging spirits knew/Yes, it is bread we fight for, but we fight for roses, too." —Bread and Roses by James Oppenheim.

by SUSAN GROBER

Staff Reporter

THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE first protest march against working conditions for women textile and garment workers in New York city in 1857 has been recognized in Canada as International Women's Day, March 8. The song "Bread and Roses" has become its theme, as it was written to commemorate a textile strike in Lawrence, Massachusetts in 1912.

About 50 women—and quite a few lively children—turned out at the West Guilford Community Centre Thursday night for Haliburton County's largest celebration of the day.

After an enormous potluck supper, Catherine Denholm, Eliza O'Neil and Caroline Bishop presented their views of women in the past, present and future.

Until she began to prepare her speech, Denholm said she "had forgotten I was on the leading edge of the women's movement." At the age of nine, she experienced the death of her mother, but was raised by a "feminist" father.

Things have changed quite a bit since Denholm was growing up. "We're proud now to be women. We can say it."

In the old days, cooking, cleaning and gardening were supposed to come naturally, "and they were supposed to come naturally to women," she said. These women were expected to wear a mask of smiles to hide feelings of embarrassment or fatigue.

"Only John Crosbie thinks of women as girls anymore... and you know how we feel about John Crosbie," Denholm said.

A student at the high school, O'Neil captured the feelings of a generation of women caught in the middle of the movement.

She said sexism is subtly present in the school system, where some teachers still think boys are better in maths and sciences. "I'm very happy to say I'm doing well in both subjects," O'Neil grinned.

Bishop was enthused by the crowd at the gathering when she discussed the future of women. "The only thing we have for our future is our visions—and what a room full of visionaries," she said.

Calling upon each person to accept the responsibility of making a difference, Bishop likened the experience to learning how to ride a bicycle.

"Remember that first summer you learned to ride a bike? You had a skinned knee all that summer." Making changes is the same. "If our knees are never skinned, then we're not taking chances. We're not pushing the boundaries."

Next the duo of Janice Benoit and Dianne Hagerman—otherwise known as Precious Friends—delighted the audience with harmonious singing and folksy guitar-playing. The pair sang a variety of songs, starting with "The Wind Beneath My Wings" from the movie Beaches, and ending with their Precious Friends theme song.

Many women had the opportunity to open up during a group-sharing discussion held after the music. Those who were reticent, however, craftily retreated to the kitchen for more coffee.

Providing entertainment at Haliburton County's first International Women's Day celebration in West Guilford were Precious Friends (a.k.a. Janice Benoit and Dianne Hagerman). The duo delighted the audience of 50 women.

Snowdon struggles without services

by SUSAN GROBER

Staff Reporter

Snowdon council has requested a preliminary report from its municipal planner before approving changes to a zoning bylaw on multi-family rental accommodations.

Planner Dave Barber had contacted the municipality about updating its zoning bylaw in order to comply with new restrictions by the Ministry of the Environment.

Enforced by the health unit, the policy prohibits a multi-family zoning in areas where no services such as water and sewer are available, unless the municipality assumes responsibility for any problems with a septic system.

At Monday's council meeting, Clerk-treasurer Ernie Hills suggested council request that Barber provide a preliminary report before considering bylaw changes.

Reeve George Simmons commented that the rule seems fairly strict, especially since many areas don't have a sewer system. "That's only two villages in Haliburton County," he said, referring to Minden and Haliburton.

Even Dysart is finding difficulty with the restriction, informed Hills. Council is currently dealing with several proposals for residential condominiums which cannot be serviced by the Haliburton Water Pollution Control Plant.

Developers would have to enter into an agreement to ensure the municipality will cover the costs incurred if the septic system breaks down.

The new restriction has made some councils hesitant about approving these proposals. Some are trying to determine whether developers can be asked to supply a deposit covering the cost of replacing the septic system.

Councillor Ron Burk said he's not certain the restriction will help in protecting the environment. "If there are too many using it, even a sewage system can't handle it and the lakes are in danger," he said.

Plaza plans get the nod

Preliminary plans for a commercial plaza on Minden's main street have received municipal council's approval in principle.

Doug Johnson presented a revised sketch to council Thursday, outlining plans for the plaza, situated adjacent to the proposed bowling alley on Bobcaygeon Road. Johnson has made a few changes since he last presented the proposal to council.

The original building size has been shortened in order to keep all parking spaces contained on the property, said Johnson. And a sidewalk will extend to the proposed bowling alley property.

Chief building official Tom Hubercheck had no objections and said municipal planner Bob Lehman has approved the plans. Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry said he prefers the changes made.

Approval in principle gives Johnson the nod to have a site plan drawn up.

'We're proud now to be women. We can say it,' says Catherine Denholm, who was on the leading edge of the women's movement, thanks to a 'feminist father'.

THIS WEEK

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

WITHOUT HAVING TO LEAVE their seats, Saturday night's concert goers travelled halfway across the world—and learned what beautiful singers Japan can produce.

A Touch of Japan was more like a caress of culture. With perfect enunciation, depth of emotion, and sheer talent, the Kyoai Chorus from Maebashi uplifted the 100 or so people gathered in the high school auditorium.

Indeed, many a choir would hope the young singers could stay in Haliburton a little longer. The 18-girl choir, with Junko Kuze on piano, provided sweet-sounding and harmonious renditions of many favourite hymns in the first part of their program.

So enthralled was the audience that, conditioned by Sunday services, their appreciation was silent after the girls sang The Lord's My Shepherd; Ave, Verum Corpus; Zum Sanctus; and Lift Thine Eyes. It wasn't until they heard the unfamiliar words of U tai masshyo that the audience remembered to applaud.

For the next part of the program—So This is English!—Director Robert Thomas reminded the audience that there is no pure l or r in Japanese. Therefore, it wasn't as strange as it first might seem to have the girls become Eliza Doolittle with a twist and sing "The rain in Spain falls mainly on the plain," from My Fair Lady.

And because the American influence on Japanese culture grows stronger every day, the bevy of Walt Disney tunes was fitting—beginning with the almost impossible and very humorous "Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious." For the chimney sweep's song, also from Mary Poppins, Mr. Thomas even managed to teach the girls to sing with a South London accent. "No 'appier bloke" made everyone smile.

The first half closed with the choir teaching the audience a little Japanese (now that was something to listen to!)

"The Japanese are committed to re-establishing world-wide peace," said Mr. Thomas. Frequent trips are made to memorials in Nakasone and Hiroshima. "Atrocities against them and by them have happened but it's part of the past."

"Chi ni he-i wa o/ wa re yo ri ha ji me-n," everybody learned to sing, although they were quickly translating that back to "Let there be peace on earth and let it begin with me..."

Greater understanding of Japan was achieved with Mr. Thomas's slide show of Maebashi, where he teaches English at the choir's Kyoai Gakuen Women's Junior College.

Mount Fuji figures largely in Japanese psyche,

A TOUCH OF JAPAN:

With former Stanhope teacher Robert Thomas at the helm, Saturday night concert goers were taken on a musical trip across the Pacific. In reality, however, Japan came to Haliburton in the guise of the Kyoai Chorus, whose kimonos were just part of a colourful evening so much so that they call the almost perfect cone-shape volcano "most honourable mountain."

There are five times many more Japanese living on their small collection of islands than there are people in Canada. Every Canadian has 50 times more land to enjoy, although there are spots of perfect serenity.

In an interview before the show, Mr. Thomas said "my wife Helen and I always say how similar (Japan is to Canada) rather than how different. The habits in styles and clothes are very much the same, although you couldn't help seeing the crowds."

"That's what makes this visit for the girls so impressive. They've been in small homes in small villages. Altogether they've had a good look at what I call solid, Ontario people."

Mr. Thomas already knows some of those solid people of Haliburton. In September 1944, he was "a green little 18 year old from Toronto" who arrived to teach at S.S. No. 5 (the office portion of the Stanhope municipal building.)

"There was no hydro or water, only outdoor facilities," he remembers. "It was a very, very dark classroom. On a dull day, I couldn't read the clock on the other side of the room."

"I was welcomed by the Dawson family and gained 25 pounds in the first year," during which he earned $96.27 a month for 10 months. Gerald Dawson, his former student, was the master of ceremonies for the concert, sponsored by the Rotary Club. As well, Helen Thomas is local teacher John Miller's sister, which is another reason why Mr. Thomas wanted to bring the choir to Haliburton.

Even though Japanese culture is similar to ours, differences remain. When Mr. Thomas first accepted a teaching position at the Kyoai Gakuen high school in 1984, in conjunction with the United Church, he and his wife were given an apartment. "We slept on a futon (a foldable cotton mattress) and the only other furniture was a dining room table, two chairs, a china cabinet and four large pillows."

The Japanese eat at low table, kotatsu, tucking their legs in underneath and sitting without a back rest. "We've been in Japanese homes where there's not a chair in the house." Chairs are one luxury the Thomases now indulge in.

Because beef is so expensive, they eat a lot of chicken and seafood, and rice all the time.

After a brief visit back home, Mr. Thomas started teaching at the newly-established Junior College in February, 1988. The Canadian equivalent for students would be those in Grade 13 and first year of university.

"I find the girls socially much less sophisticated. There's a naivete. They're not hard workers. They must pass incredibly stiff entrance exams to get into college, but once they get into college they relax. They work hard to get in and then work just enough to pass because the diploma has a tremendous amount of prestige attached."

When she graduates, 21-year-old Keiko Nojiri wants to be involved in dentistry. Many young women now work, she says before the show, but when they marry, most will stay at home with their family.

"It's not very free for women, you have more freedom in Canada," says Keiko.

Local teenagers could relate to their Japanese counterparts when Keiko says she and her friends talk about "boys, fashion, hair styles and diet."

Instead of fearing America's cultural influence, the Japanese seem to covet it. Keiko says many young people aren't interested in Japan's long history, and are more impressed with modern life.

"Everybody said Canada is like the United States, but I believe people here more friendly," she adds. "We travelled around a lot and every time people are so kind to us."

"Some people had a problem to eat the food because it is oily and too sweet," and indeed, during the concert Keiko has to step out for a while because of a stomach ache. "Japanese people are delicate... polite. If you don't like the food you can't say no."

Back to the concert... After the slide show, the choir delighted everyone with a series of Japanese songs. It was here the girls really shone, and showed how much fun singing could really be. Just as we have nonsense songs and words, not all of the Japanese songs could be translated. (In the four seasons set, Mr. Thomas explained that the Japanese word for snow is uchi—which sounds a lot like yucky!!)

Unbeknownst to Mr. Thomas, the girls had written a special song for him, in thanks for his bringing them Canada. They didn't get far into the song when the notes started to warble and the tears started to flow. Their admiration and love for their English teacher was expressed without words, but written on their faces.

It's an admiration the Haliburton audience had quickly learned to share.

Four songs about Japan's four beautiful seasons illustrated that Canadians aren't the only ones to boast about fall colours. But the shoe fit on the other foot as well: Some of the Japanese students didn't know that Canada isn't the land of eternal snow

Opposing forces

Discussions last week between Anson, Minden and Minden council and representatives of the Bat Lake property owners association provided more evidence — if any was needed — of the growing conflict between the absolute imperative to protect the local environment and the almost equally strong economic need to create new lakefront lots. The discussions also served to emphasize that local councils do not have an adequate means of assessing when proposed development, particularly small scale development by severance, should be permitted, and when it should be denied.

Minden council was asked to consider a zoning change that would allow a property owner to create four lots on a parcel with 900 feet of shoreline. Each of the lots would exceed the 132 foot frontage minimum set down in the municipal zoning by-law. The Health Unit approved the lots for septic installation, and the land is otherwise suitable for building. But other property owners on the lake object to the proposed severances. They say Bat Lake's water quality is declining, and fear that nutrient enrichment from the new lots could make the water even worse. Their concerns also encompass the broader environmental issues of how many people use the lake, and by what means. At present, they say, the 14 property owners enjoy quiet sports such as canoeing and board sailing, but they fear new property owners might not respect that tranquility.

The conflict is a minor one, affecting a small number of cottagers, but the essence of the debate is repeated in every council chamber in Haliburton County, and concerns every person who owns local property, or dreams of it.

On the one hand, a great many people are worried about the environment — not only about water quality and fast-filling landfill sites, but about more subtle issues — noise pollution, the impact of development on wildlife, the consequences of shoreline and property 'improvements', the number and speed of boats, and even the growing problem of light pollution caused by property owners determined to bring the city's glow north with them, spotlights assailing the dark.

On the other hand, development is a manifestation of free enterprise, and in Haliburton County, one of its central pillars. There would be no cottages anywhere if development had been ruled out. A host of local services and hundreds of local jobs, depend on the dollars that flow from cottage, residential and commercial development.

Development is seldom wholly good or wholly bad, but something in between. The challenge we all face is to decide when the good outweighs the bad, and by whose scale of measurement. Even if there is a consensus that environmental protection is infinitely more important than short term economic gain, few could agree on the boundaries between enhancement and exploitation, between enjoyment and abuse.

It would be easy to dismiss the concerns of the Bat Lake cottagers as trivial — as yet another example of how people always want the lot their cottage is built on to be the last one permitted. But that would be unfair, because they clearly have a deep concern about the quality of the water in the lake, even though they are themselves contributing to its deterioration. For its part, council has no alternative but to work within the guidelines of their bylaw. To do otherwise would be to invite conflict and chaos. As reeve Ray Moore rightly pointed out, in the absence of objections from environment and natural resources ministry officials, council has to approve development that conforms to municipal regulations.

The days of unfettered development, of cutting up every mile of lakeshore into as many lots as possible, are gone. New lots will continue to be created and for many years to come. It would be easier to assess the appropriateness of development if there were a long list of objective criteria to which councils and property owners could refer. In their absence, arguments will continue to rage, and common sense and compromise will continue to prevail.

Values learned by living them

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

OUR READERS WRITE...

To the Editor:

Len Pizze's editorial of March 7 perpetuates the myth that the only way to inculcate what you call "the essential elements of goodness" is to teach them. In fact, values are learned by being lived. If children are surrounded by love, truthfulness, forgiveness, respect for diversity and appreciation for their essential goodness, then generally they will express this in their lives. Very little will be learned by having one person tell them that Jesus loves them unless they experience this love from people.

Living and expressing positive spiritual values is a tremendous challenge, one which all adults who spend time with children would do well to accept for themselves first.

Incidentally, many wonderful stories are available for a variety of religious traditions which "embrace the ideals of love, tolerance, responsibility and goodness" at least as well as Bible stories. Compiling them will not be difficult.

I agree wholeheartedly that spiritual values are necessary in all aspects of human life, including schools. The Christianity classes have, however, been for my children a source of anguish on one occasion and of boredom, frustration and a challenge to their tolerance at other times. I will not be sorry to see them end.

Sincerely,
Caroline Bishop,
RR.1 Haliburton.

Bilingualism growing

To the Editor:

When my father, Neilson Owens, attended school in Camarvon no French was taught or spoken.

When the four of us, his daughters, attended Barrie Collegiate, French was taught, read, spoken, sung and even understood!

All four of our children have been exposed to French, all understand it to some degree, and two of them speak it fluently.

I do not think this trend through three generations is untypical. Bilingualism is growing, in part because of exposure, partly due to necessity and in some measure because of interest. The thing to note is that it is growing.

Eleanor Cooper,
West Guilford

Facts are facts

To the Editor:

I am writing in reference to Martha Perkins' and Len Pizze's timely articles and editorials about the controversial language issue. Many would call the Echo's stand an 'opinion'; I believe it is the only logical conclusion, based upon the facts and history of Canada.

We are a bilingual country and the time has come for everyone to accept bilingualism, and make it work to our advantage. A country that can do business in two or more languages can have a definite advantage in a highly competitive world.

A major concern appears to be the cost of the French language and culture. To truly measure costs there must be a comparison. I have yet to hear any complaints about the cost of promoting kEnglish, as a language or culture. In Haliburton alone we have the Blue Grass Festival, The Highland Games and Heritage Buildings (museums, etc.) all of which promote English culture, and all received taxpayers' funds. Now let's compare! Many other costs have been falsely attributed. Does it cost more to run a French hospital, or pay a bilingual person's wages?

The time has come for people to put aside their emotions, and look at the facts. Everyone knows it costs more to be Canadian, but isn't it worth it? Whatever happened to the good natured, liberal minded people? I believe they are still the majority and hope they speak up soon! The time has come for the silent majority to pull together, and break the silence!

Regards,
Michael Wedmann,
Stanhope.

FEIR PLAY

CREIGHTON FEIR

I WAS TALKING to Connie Woods of Haliburton recently and she said that she and her husband, Rick, and Kim and Derrell Stamp had the opportunity, thanks to the generosity of Bernie Nicholls, of flying to Pittsburgh, P.A. recently to attend the National Hockey League All Star game and the Oldtimers Game held the previous night. Connie was quite excited when she was telling me that they attended both nights and that Rick and Derrell not only enjoyed the All Star Game but that they took a great interest in the Oldtimers game as it brought back many old memories of some of the players who played in the six-team N.H.L. They met such former players as Bobby Hall, Stan Makita and were introduced to Steve Yersman of the present Detroit Red Wings. Following the All Star Game Bernie Nicholls took the boys into the dressing room to meet the players. They had seats right behind Mr. McNall, owner of the Los Angeles Kings and sat right in front of Mrs. Wayne Gretzky.

St. George's Anglican Church in Haliburton is celebrating its 125th Anniversary with many special events. On Sunday, March 25th they will be saying it with music when they hold a Musical Celebration at the Legion Hall in Haliburton. Everyone is invited to an evening "Music of Fun and Reflection" by musicians from St. George's. It gets underway at 7 p.m.

A husband and wife missionary team who have spent the last 23 years in Brazil will speak about their observations at the Minden United Church tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m.

A few local notes... Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Don Lloyd all of Haliburton have returned home following a two week vacation in Curacao... Mr. and Mrs. Andy Salvatori have taken up residence in Haliburton. Andy will be employed at Curry Motors Limited... We were sorry to learn of the death of Grenville Stamp, of West Guilford. He was a respected family man and businessman and will be missed by everyone who knew him... Mr. and Mrs. Ken Langdon, Mr. and Mrs. Vince Connaughan of Haliburton and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bagg of Eagle Lake have returned home following a two week vacation in the Bahamas and Florida... Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sisson were recent visitors to Haliburton... Mr. and Mrs. Don Finn have returned home following a skiing trip to Aspen, Colorado... Mr. and Mrs. Lyle McCracken of Haliburton were recent visitors to Toronto.

When the Echo hits the streets this morning it reminds me that we are right in the middle of the March Break. It's that time of year once again when the students and the teachers get a much needed break and an opportunity to get a few days away from school and books. This intermission, which happens once a year and gives those who want to get away for a few days the chance to beat what's left of those winter blues. It would appear that more people than ever have taken the opportunity to get away. One can notice that it is quieter than usual in most of the communities here in Haliburton County. More than 100 skiers from here are in Vermont skiing while others are skiing in places such as Colorado and Banff. Those who decided to stay at home will be skiing at our own popular Sir Sam's Ski Area at Eagle Lake. Those not interested in skiing are vacationing in the warmer climate in such places as Florida and the Barbados. Several have indicated that they will be spending the week's vacation in Toronto.

The Haliburton Horticultural Society will be holding Public Meetings on Thursday, March 22 and on April 19 and May 17 with interesting speakers. Local businesses will not be canvassed this year, but the support of the general public would be appreciated. The local Horticultural Society is appealing for new members and we understand that memberships are available for $2.00 from any present members. Mary Packard is president and Dorothy Baker is treasurer. This organization does a bang-up job every summer, and they are responsible for most of those beautiful plants and flowers around the village.

Canada Post is expanding postal services to its customers in Haliburton through the opening of a retail postal outlet at Banks Heritage Store on Pine Street. Retail postal outlets are opened to complement the retail postal services offered by the existing corporate office. Postal services will be available at Banks Heritage Store beginning on March 14. Postal products and services will be available 7 days a week. You will be able to post your mail at this location and purchase products and services such as stamps, money orders, special letter mail, Priority Courier and C.O.D.'s.

In last week's column I pointed out that the 4C's in Haliburton were not in need of food. Since that time Haydon Gillespie, a member of the 4C's team, tells me that they are in need of food and that they're giving out two or three boxes a week.

Skiers survive 'Cardiac Hill'

NORTHERN LIGHTS

VIRGINIA MUENZEL

DEAR SHEILA:

Do you remember saying how you'd like to ski from your place to the Pinestone Inn just once, to prove that you can do it? How you'd like someone to meet you there for dinner, and drive you and your skis home? Remember how you guys are always telling Ed and I about the neat ski trail from Woodland Ranch to the little cabin, where people can rest and have their lunch before they go back? I particularly want you to remember telling us how 'gentle' the slopes are. And how, "The whole thing only takes a couple of hours."

It's true, we were getting bored with backyard skiing. Even though there are several acres of field and some baby slopes behind the house, we had skied it all. We felt the need for advancement.

Finally there was a nice dump of snow and the ski trails were spruced up. We packed our lunches in backpacks, put on enough layers for the cold, crisp day, and gathered up our gear. Soon we were picked up by that famous adventures, Wendy 'Just around the next bend' Bateman.

A light just went on in your head, didn't it? Yes, indeed, Sheila. She did it to us again! This is our same friend who tried to convince us that we could canoe from Blue Hawk Lake to Kinmount via the Burnt River and back in two days. Who pouted and whined because we bailed out at Donald, after a sleepless night in a 2x4 tent on a bed of mossy, lumpy rocks. She called us sissies just because we hurried home to soothe our aching joints in the hot tub.

Good old Wendy 'I guess the map's in the car' Bateman. And we're so dumb, we assumed that she knew the trails. After all, the first sign we passed after lunch at the cabin said 'easiest'. It also mentioned stuff about Pinestone Inn, Woodland Loop, and Olympic Trail. But Wendy told us, full of confidence that the Woodland Loop would likely veer off long before we got to the trail to the inn.

That was some time around 1:45. Ed and I had each fallen once. Not bad for a couple of novices. We skied on.

The next sign read 'more difficult'. So we fell more often. We came to a third sign, 'most difficult'. Somewhere in there, both Ed and I began falling uphill. I took off my skis and walked up a hill, and down and up again. Ed removed his skis after missing the downhill curve. Wendy booed and hissed just before she fell. We came to a 'caution' sign.

And then we saw it. We had all heard about it. Everyone who cross country skis knows that the Pinestone Trail has a 'Cardiac Hill'. There were bare rocks and dirt showing. I said, 'Hey, Wendy, maybe we ought to go back'.

And she said, "We haven't passed the Woodland Loop turnoff. It's got to be just around the next bend."

Wendy and Sid took off their skis, and without the aid of ropes or spiked boots, we were able to edge our way down the face of that cliff. (Off the trail, of course.) Don't ask me why we kept following them. Maybe we were in shock. We noticed that our companions still carried their skis. It occurred to us that we hadn't seen another soul all afternoon. We also noticed the position of the sun. According to Ed's watch, we had now been on the trail for three and a half hours, counting the forty-five minutes for lunch, and we were still heading in the wrong direction.

Have you ever been in one of those situations where one guy goes on ahead, then you send someone else because the first guy doesn't answer your call? A half hour later, they trudged back up to us to report that they had found a couple of signs. One of them read, "Pinestone Inn, 4-1/2 km". The other one said something about Woodland Ranch Loop ahead.

It was 4 p.m. and cooling down. We made a quick judgement... "Better the devil you know!" And the devil we knew was the climb back up Cardiac Hill.

After another hour and a half of climbing up and down hills on increasingly wobbly legs, I couldn't keep myself from yelling, "Where's the damned cabin?"

Of course, we all know where it wasn't, don't we? Don't do it Sheila.

Your friend,
Ginnie.

February 21 edition of The Echo entitled "A Nightmare Tax".

Whereas we are not taking a position on the GST one way or the other and agree it does have its abnormalities, i.e.: the convolutions of input tax credits; a container of yogurt is taxable, a package of 4 is not; jargon such as tax exempt (which means the business pays tax), zero rated (which is tax free) and "consideration for supply"; GST on gasoline and motive fuels is after Provincial taxes, whilst GST on other petroleum products is before Provincial tax; not to mention the M.U.S.H.'s whereby the Municipalities' services which are in competition with the private sector are taxable whilst other services are not. There is available for small business an excellent publication entitled "GST, Information for Small Business". It can be obtained by calling 1-800-267-6620.

Any business whose annual sales are up to $6,000,000 can be classed as a small business and be guided accordingly.

If annual revenues from "Taxable Supplies" are less than $30,000 the business can opt out altogether. i.e. they are not required to collect GST nor are they entitled to claim input credits.

Other than the above and what you get out of the: Technical papers; Ways and Means Motion; Legislation and technical notes; I hope that you have a good accountant and a flexible cash register and if you have computerized systems, allow plenty of time for changes and testing.

Yours very truly,
J.G. Strickland,
Scarborough.

Air 'quality' distress

To the Editor:

Airing on the side of caution:

I found it rather distressing to read about the Archie Stouffer School Annex "Air quality compromise". Some of the comments by the Board of Education trustees during this ongoing issue need to be addressed. For example, does the assumption that the old I.G.A. building is a temporary facility for students justify 1-1/2 years of near inertia on the part of the board?

The Ministry of Labour tested and found the building's air quality to be unacceptable, as did the Ministry of Health, which registered its concerns along with written remedial recommendations as early as January, 1989. Why has there been no attempt to rectify this problem by following these suggestions, other than inserting a small window in one of the classrooms and extending the air conditioning supply to other rooms?

Why was this token, band-aid solution, this miraculous effort at compliance not made for approximately 7 months after the advice from the local health unit was received?

My concerns have been verbally expressed on a number of occasions, since September 1988, to various board members who appear to regard this subject as non-problematic, as long as it's encountered by assuming the posture of an ostrich. Perhaps by some quirk of fate or divine intervention, a fresh breeze will magically blow through the hallways and dislodge the offensive "thorn in the side" of our bureaucratic delusion of wellness. In this case, contrary to the opinion of those who are in position to initiate necessary modifications, the system is not working. "Bright and cheerful classrooms" do not imply an adequately ventilated space, as confirmed by too many time-consuming tests to-date. It isn't necessary to pull a plant out by the roots to know it needs water. It is also unnecessary to perform any more studies to know that changes are necessary now in order to provide an optimal as possible (let alone "acceptable") environment for our kids and their teachers, who live in this setting several hours weekly.

Portables may indeed be a poor alternative, with a predominantly "stuffy, stinky and close" atmosphere, but if so, why are they allowed to function in these obviously sub-standard conditions as well?

Why not contact someone with expertise in the field of indoor environmental assessment to evaluate the status of all of our schools in Haliburton County? There are seminars sponsored by the education ministry dealing with this subject and individuals who are trained in this type of investigation could offer practical, curative advice that may prove to be worthwhile and implemented with not too much difficulty for both immediate and long-term benefit.

"We're not poisoning the children", another statement by one of the trustees, is a resumption that needs careful re-evaluation. Excessive carbon dioxide levels and insufficient oxygen supply, indicative of poor air exchange, are factors that have shown to induce cumulative health ramifications. These may not be immediately evident as acute disease manifestations, but certainly can show up later on, with continued exposure as inattentiveness, drowsiness, behavioral and learning disorders, headaches, respiratory distress, lowered immune response or central nervous system dysfunction. We may have been inadvertently subjecting our offspring to a slow bullet, and silence in this issue amounts to inexcusable complicity.

Congratulations and thanks are due to members of the Minden Home and School Association for their consistent endeavors to ensure and long-overdue resolution to this deplorable situation. Fresh air should not be considered an unaffordable commodity, especially when the health and welfare of our kids is at stake. Commitment to amending this static and serious situation should be the main priority of those entrusted with the public faith, so let's get on with the show.

Carnarvon

Pic of the Past

Possibly some of our senior citizens will recognize some of the people in this group shown in front of the original buildings of Wig-A-Mog Inn around 1922. A meeting was held in the white tent in the left of the photo. At that time Holly Robertson, who owned the property, was building Wig-A-Mog which turned into one of the top tourist resorts in the area. Holly and his brother Mervyn operated Wig-A-Mog until Holly's death and then Mervyn took over. It was later sold to its present owners Joan and Art Ward. Disillusioned with Disney

THESE ARE DISILLUSIONING TIMES. Things you always thought were true turn out not to be so. Maybe it's a more cynical word. Or perhaps it's just a sign I'm growing up...

First of all, there was a reunion program about Peter, Paul and Mary. Nice sounding group, part of a gentler time. Then, I find out from the publicity that Peter's real name is Irving, or something. I was so shocked, I don't remember for sure what it was.

Then the little boy who Babe Ruth hit the home run for died a few weeks ago. The legend had been that, during the 1926 World Series, the Babe went to the bedside of this dying boy and promised to hit a homer for him.

It was one of the high points of a movie of his life, starring William Bendix in the '40s. I saw it when I was a kid, and I still remember the scene. But it seems all he got in advance was an autographed baseball, and as far as 'little Johnny' being near death, he was 74 when he kicked the bucket...

Up till now, I have always been an admirer of Walt Disney, and particularly the way his theme parks on each coast were run, with cheerful staff, effective handling of crowds, and real cleanliness everywhere.

But of course Walt is dead now, and the accountants have taken over. The chairman of the outfit took home $500-million in pay and benefits last year, and some fellow named Eisener, I think, turns up doing what 'Uncle Walt' used to do on TV events like the recent Disneyland 35th Anniversary.

To get a perspective on this story, I have to skip around a little. First of all, there has been a 'fun' restaurant near the Toronto waterfront just a little east of Jarvis street for a number of years. It's called the Victoria Station, and it's made up of old railway coaches and boxcars.

I took a friend there for lunch a few years ago, and found a little tent on the table stating that water would be served with meals 'only on request'. This made me curious. Being me, I asked why.

The answer was that the decision had been made at their 'corporate headquarters' in San Francisco — a city where there was an extreme water shortage that summer.

The word went out to all stations, so if you wanted to drink water with your meal in their Toronto location, then you had to speak up!

Leaping ahead to last November, I wrote a column on beards, in which I mentioned the quaint old days when a beard was a burden on a visit to the U.S. because many people related it to 'peaceniks' and the general resistance to the war in Viet Nam.

I don't know the exact timing of that war in relation to the founding of Disneyland, but then beards weren't really that common until those wartime protest years, and Walt originally stipulated that his park employees couldn't have a beard or a mustache.

To be honest, I am unclear as to why mustaches were on the no-no list since, if they enforced it equally, old Walt and his cookie-duster would be stopped at the employees gate. But of course he's dead and gone, and not answering any questions...

Now, one place where 'facial hair' (as Disney Corporation rulebooks call it) has always been okay has been in the Navy and on ships in general. It may go back to the problems of trying to shave without cutting yourself when the seas were high, but it has been part of the scenery on ships of every kind — even on the Great Lakes.

So, to pull all these threads together, it seems that the Disney Corporation bought an attraction in Long Beach, California, which includes the Queen Mary. John Magness, the First Officer, who was definitely part of the atmosphere on board, was told to walk the plank last New Year's Day.

He is 65, but that wasn't what did him in. It was for refusing an order to shave off his mustache.

Magness said 'I've had that mustache for 42 years. My kids have never seen me without it, and my oldest boy is 42. I grew it the year he was born...'

Naturally, I'm with him. The Disney brass point out that there was lots of 'facial hair' among the 700 male employees on the Queen Mary when they took over — the previous owners presumably recognizing it as part of the marine atmosphere — and while there was some grumbling, 99 per cent did as they were ordered.

Disney spokespersons freely admit that Magness was a good crew member, liked by visitors and the staff alike, and that he kept his mustache neatly trimmed and clean. But, you see, the rules are right there in the book the way Mr. Disney wrote them.

Somehow, I think a creative person such as Walt would have made some changes over 35 years. But he's not running it now. It's a Corporation, it's traded on the stock market, and it's in the hands of the bean counters.

As someone once said, have an accountant on tap — but never on top!

DOWN OUR ROAD

SHARON LYNCH

HE WAS A CRUSTY old son of a gun who could rub you the wrong way as easily as look at you. Big as a bear, with a loud booming voice, he could turn that voice to silky confidentiality when he wanted to. Stan was a born salesman even though he now did small engine repairs and a bit of farming. But in his early days, before he left the city, he sold anything and everything and it was in his blood.

On first impression, his wife Kate was the exact opposite. Yet once you got to know her, the similarities became evident. Kate also had been in sales in her other life and where Stan used a hard sell, she was a master of the soft sell. A gentle voice masked a keen sense of timing and repertoire of answers for every objection. They made a good team. Although Stan was firmly at the helm of their marital ship, you always got the feeling that she could work away at him and bring him to change his position if he was really wrong.

Their home was as interesting as they were, reflecting their many interests and general philosophy on life. A huge airtight sat in the attached and insulated garage, right by the kitchen door. With pots of water simmering on top, it not only warmed and moistened the garage, which was also a workshop for Stan, but the tremendous heat made its way into the kitchen and part of the living room. Every fall Stan and Kate went into the bush and cut their own firewood for the following year. They had cord after cord of it drying in various open-sided structures scattered around their property and Stan liked to brag they were always three years ahead in the firewood department.

Kate did a lot of baking and preserving. They bought in bulk and froze as much as possible. A huge garden, complete with fruit trees and berry bushes kept them going all year and they owned every possible piece of machinery necessary to maintain their mini-farm. Even more than that, they had a spare part for everything. Stan never bought new, always

Haliburton men psyched for scrimmage at Saturday game

THIS WEEK IN THE M.H.L.

by: CHIP TRUEMAN

SATURDAY, MARCH 17 will mark the official end to this year's M.H.L. season. For most players however, the season ended on Sunday night as Emmerson Lumber clinched first place by holding Youngdale's Fuels to a 4-4 tie. Regardless of Saturday's results, the championship trophy goes to the boys in green. Club owner/player Kim Emmerson is reportedly building an addition to his retail showroom to display the team's award. But, like where will he get the material dude???? Congratulations fellas, you outplayed every team you met in the playoffs and deserve top honours—hands down!

Quickly recapping Sunday's other games, Vasey Insurance trounced Roberts-Austin Fuels by a score of 12-8. Most of those goals came from a small crowd. Glen Fick netted five and Time Chambers popped in a hat trick for the brokers. Bob Woodcock and Chris Mawbey got three a piece for the fuelmen.

In game two Haliburton Lumber blazed Bishop and Wilson by an 11-4 count. Again, some big totals here. Rob Abbs scored five, Wade MacInnes four and Steve Smith two for H.L. Surveyor points came from Greg Bishop, Mike Keaney, Jim Winn and Mark somebody-or-other.

Elstone Motors crushed Curry Motors' chance at the cup by whipping the motormen 5-2 in game three. Winning shots came from Ed Davis, tom Curry, Steve Roberts and Steve Wilcox. Dave Hicks and Hardy Kraft scored to no avail. I can still hear Walter... "and that's the way it was... March 11... nineteen hundred and ninety."

So it looks like Saturday will be a scrimmage. But hey, even though the game results won't have a big impact on things let us not lose sight of our ambitions. I'm psyched. I'm pumped. I'm going to get that goal. Hey, maybe it will even be unassisted! How's that for dedication? Alright here's the format:

All four scheduled games will be played.
First game starts at 4:00 p.m.
Games will run approximately one hour.
Three periods of fifteen minute straight time.
Dance starts at 8:00 p.m.
Come on out, support your team, and have some fun.
I'm Chip and that was... THIS WEEK IN THE M.H.L.

PeeWees topple Millbrook, 3-1

The PeeWees are off to a good start with their playoffs. After the first round was forfeited to the PeeWees they now are meeting Millbrook.

The first game was played March 10 at the Haliburton arena. The PeeWees shut out Millbrook 3-0, earning our first two points.

Jamie McMahon opened the scoring for the PeeWees assisted by Billy Koz. Jeff Miscio scored the second goal assisted by Jamie Fryer and Johnny Hewson. In the third period Colin Morrison scored, assist went to Jimmy O'Neill. With the defensemen working hard and the team eager to get the win, Jamie Cowen received another shut-out.

The second game of this series was played in Millbrook, March 11. The final score of this game was 2-2.

The first period was played out with no player scoring.

Millbrook's Chris Mitchell assisted by Scott Sanderson opened up the scoring, but Haliburton came back with a goal by Jamie McMahon assisted by Colin Morrison.

In the third, Millbrook's Jamie Grant, assisted by Scott Sanderson put in another to go ahead of Haliburton. But, a short time later Johnny Hewson passed to Colin Morrison, who on a break away, fired in a very well executed important goal.

This leaves the series with Haliburton ahead of Millbrook in points, 3-1.

PeeWees split weekend's games

This past Saturday the Jackson Real Estate PeeWees hosted the opening game of the All Ontario "DD" semi-finals against Langton.

This game lived up to the expectations of what play-off hockey should be. There was fast skating, good passing, hard hitting, a penalty shot and an overtime period.

Haliburton got on the board first with a goal by Kevin Morissette assisted by Tim Keefer and Mark Morissette. Langton tied the game, but Mark put the locals ahead only to have the opposition net two straight goals to take the lead. Tim tied the game late in the third to force an overtime thriller.

Langton scored what proved to be the winner at 7:25 of overtime to take a twelve-point lead in the series.

On Sunday, Haliburton travelled to Langton, and showed sheer determination as they evened the series with an identical 4-3 overtime win. Excellent goaltending by Peter Brohman kept the game close. The defense duos of Jeff Teatro and Jackie Morrison and Andy Billings and Curtis Bain played superbly as they forced the opposition to shoot from bad angles.

The line of Jonathan Bishop, Mark Stamp and Derek Glendinning played strong defensively, but had some bad luck around the net as they were foiled in their attempts to score.

Kevin Morissette had two goals, including the overtime winner on a pass from Jeff Teatro. Tim Keefer and Mark Morissette added the other goals, with assists going to Andy Billings and Curtis Bain.

The third game will be played in Langton on Saturday, March 17 at 3:30 p.m. Haliburton will host the fourth game on Sunday, March 18 at 3:30 p.m. at the Dysart Community Centre.

'Magic Man's' shut-out earns Tykes a spectacular 5-0 win

The Jasco Drug Mart Tykes travelled to Bobcaygeon on Sunday, March 11 to participate in their first Tri-County tournament. Omeme was their first opponent. The Jasco boys played hard with dreams of that all-important trophy at the end of the tournament.

Neither team scored in the first period, with the action end-to-end throughout the first and second period. Chris Petrow scored for Haliburton assisted by Logan Roberts with only 42 seconds left in the second period.

In the middle of the third period, the Tykes took control of the action. Scot Curry garnered a goal assisted by defenseman Jamie Doan.

Defensemen Jeff Wilson, Jamie Doan and Chris Petrow were doing an excellent job keeping the puck in Omeme's end. With 1 minute 40 seconds left in play, Ryan Wood scored assisted by Jamie Doan. As the clock wound down into the final minute, Jasco's Adam Henry scored unassisted. Then with only 14 seconds left, Adam Henry scored yet again, assisted by Ryan Wood.

The rest of the Tyke forward line, consisting of Logan Roberts, Shane Campbell and Chris Nimigon played strongly, with effective checking, passing and as we say "digging". Solid defense was by Jeff Wilson, Jamie Doan and Chris Petrow. "Magic Man Travis Bain" out-performed himself earning his first shut-out, an excellent gain earning the Jasco boys a 5-0 win.

The Jasco Tykes played Uxbridge for their second game of the tournament. Unfortunately, Uxbridge had five over-age players and were disqualified, giving the Jasco boys the right to play in the final game of the tournament.

Knowing this game was for the all-important "trophy", they put their everything into it, and it was as good a game as you could hope to see.

Having lost once and tied once to Ops, the Jasco boys knew they were hard opponents. Ops' Michael Jewell opened up the scoring in the first minute of play. Jasco's Ryan Wood received an excellent pass from Adam Henry and fired a shot the Ops net-minder couldn't touch, scoring Haliburton's first goal.

A few minutes into the second period, Shane Campbell had a breakaway scoring for the Tykes. Jeff Wilson, Jamie Doan and Chris Petrow were as strong a defense as you could hope for, determined to keep the puck out of Haliburton's end.

Going into the third period with a 2-1 lead, the boys' team effort could be seen. Chris Nimigon took advantage of a two-way passing play from Scot Curry and Shane Campbell scoring for the Tykes. Generally when they score, they give their teammates the "big five"—today it was the "big hug". There was a lot of team spirit in the air.

A few minutes later, Shane Campbell had a chance to take advantage of another two-way passing play from Chris Nimigon and Scot Curry, adding another score. Ops' Matthew Harris scored the final goal of the game assisted by David Ferguson and Allen Irvine. Magic Man Travis Bain was superb as net-minder! With a 4-2 win for Haliburton, the Jasco Drug Mart Tykes were the champions of the tournament.

The Champions consist of: Netminder, Travis Bain; Centres, Logan Roberts and Ryan Wood; Wingers, Shane Campbell, Chris Nimigon, Scot Curry and Adam Henry; Defensemen, Jeff Wilson, Jamie Doan and Chris Petrow; Coaches, Ernie Bain and Rick Wood.

All the Tykes received their own trophies and the team trophy is on display at the Haliburton arena.

Novices wind up season in style

It may not have been pretty but "wow" it was exciting, winning hockey. This past weekend the Haliburton OMHA Spectra Novice Huskies wound up their season in fine style when they participated in the annual Ken Shier Memorial Tournament in Cannington. They put it all together to win all three of their games, including a victory over the hometown favourites in the final game, to claim the championship and cap what had been a somewhat lack lustre season.

The Huskies played like a championship team. That is, they put together the season's experience from practices and game with a lot of heart and intensity. The forwards skated both ways creating scoring chances on the offence and back checking vigorously. The defence pressed the play turning it back up ice and cleared the puck from the danger zone in front of the net. And in the net Andrew Baker kept them in there with dazzling goal tending.

In the first game on Saturday morning Haliburton faced Sunderland. Early in the first period Matthew Burk cleared the puck out of the Haliburton end. Burk and winger Mike Craigen battled at centre ice until Mike broke free with the puck and carried it in over the blueline where he slid a pass to Matthew. Matthew took a shot from a bad angle but Mike came up with the rebound and put in the net with the other winger Jason Henry ready on the other side of the crease. The lead was shortlived though as Sunderland scored before the period ended.

In the second, the play was close and it was Haliburton's other line that benefited from team work as they gave the Huskies the lead once more. Pressing the play in the Sunderland end Greg Forgrave did his impression of Wayne Gretzky, when he took the puck behind Sunderland's net and passed to Andrew Postlethwaite stationed at the side of the net. Andrew took a quick look and rather than shoot he slid the puck to Mike Morissette in front of the net. Mike one-timed it into the net for the goal. As the second period wore on Sunderland had their chances such as when they broke out with a 3-on-1 rush. Their big centre wheeled around Haliburton's defense and shot. Baker in the net made the save and covered up not leaving a rebound for the trio.

Nicholls Novices treat fans to excitement

Kicking off the playoff week was a return engagement with the Fenelon Falls Falcons, thus wrapping up the home-home series between these two clubs. A win by either team would eliminate the other from further playoff competition. After settling for a tie in the Fenelon arena the last time these two teams met, it was imperative for the Nicholls players to put their best foot forward and take charge of their own destiny.

Answering the call for the Nicholls team was forward converted to defenseman, Matthew Billings, who drilled Haliburton's first shot on net into the bottom corner staking his team to a quick 1-0 lead. The Falcons, just over a minute later, squared the game at one, the goal coming from Jamie Wright.

Amy Herd, a thorn in the side of the Haliburton team, scored Fenelon's second goal with assists going to Weightman and Dymont. Typical of the way games have been played between the two rivals - scores see-sawing back and forth—Haliburton tied the affair at two on a goal from Greg Schell with

Ontario Hydro would like to share its thoughts on tomorrow's electricity needs

And we invite you to give us yours.

Over the years Ontario's appetite for electricity has been steadily growing. Within the next ten years, we face the very real possibility that demand may outstrip our available supply.

That's why Ontario Hydro has introduced "Providing The Balance of Power" a proposal that looks at how we can make the best possible use of all our existing resources, examines the possibilities of purchasing electricity from our neighbours, discusses the need for new generation and suggests why wise energy use at home, in facories and in the office is essential. It sets out the issues that will affect all our energy futures in the years ahead.

You're invited to discuss Providing the Balance of Power at the Ontario Hydro Information Centre.

We need your views—we need your feedback.

Staff at the Information Centre are there, not only to explain the proposal, but more importantly to listen to your ideas and views on the future...and record your suggestions. You will receive a questionnaire which can be filled out at the Information Centre, or, if you'd prefer, mailed from home later on. And you'll also receive a copy of a comprehensive 52 page book that explains the proposal. Your feedback is an important part of the process in meeting tomorrow's energy needs.

Miraculous moves clinch championship for Novices

Near the end of the second when Haliburton was pressing the play in Sunderland's end their captain scooped up the puck and dashed down the ice on a clear break-away. Again Baker made the stop and dropped to the ice covering the puck, while not quite sure where it was.

In the third period the play was tight and both teams tired but Sunderland came through to tie the game.

Tired or not, it was sudden death overtime with a player from each side being dropped after each minute of play. It started with a goalie and five players aside, then 4 players, then 3, 2 and finally only the goalies with the team captains facing off at centre ice. The puck was dropped, slapped to the boards, a struggle, Matt Burk, with the strength of a bull, gained control and bolted for Sunderland's net with their captain in hot pursuit. At the net Matt lunged to avoid being checked and flipped the puck high over the goalie's shoulder for the win. Haliburton 3—Sunderland 2. Haliburton advanced to the championship side of the tournament and Sunderland to the consolation side which they eventually won with relative ease.

There followed a 7-hour wait for the Huskies until the Bobcaygeon match. Bobcaygeon came out looking bigger and stronger than Sunderland and featuring two star players. The game started fast and

'Tired or not, it was sudden death overtime with a player from each side being dropped after each minute of play..'

Midway through the first period Bobcaygeon hemmed the puck in Haliburton's end until defenceman Andrew Burch moved the puck to Greg Forgrave who in turn cleared it to the blueline and something happened that we had waited for all season. Andrew Postlethwaite kicked the puck ahead with his skate and then turned on that powerful skating stride of his to catch up to the puck and out-distance the two Bobcaygeon defencemen down the ice. Making a move to his right he drew the goalie to that side of the crease and refted the puck back across the net, past the goalie for one beautiful goal. Well worth waiting for.

In the second period the same wicked pace was set. Bobcaygeon took a penalty. The Huskies buzzed 'Caygeon's net. As Bobcaygeon tried to clear the puck defenceman Devon Dart moved in to keep the puck inside the blueline, took a look and slipped it over to dynamo Mike Craigen who lifted it high into the net for a 2-goal lead. As the second drew to a close both teams could be seen to be tiring. But playing with a lot of heart the line of Burk, Craigen and Henry crowded the Bobcaygeon goal area and Burk scored his only goal of the game. On the next shift Bobcaygeon broke out and got on the scoreboard.

In the third, the teams were visibly tired but neither would quit. Haliburton's best scoring chance came when Burk set up Craigen on a break-away. As Mike moved in on the net he fired a thundering shot that missed the net but put a noticeable dent in the end boards. Bobcaygeon got their chance, as Haliburton was forcing the play in their end, two men broke out only to have Baker make the stop and not give a rebound. The period ended as Bobcaygeon scored with two seconds left in the game. Final score Haliburton 3—Bobcaygeon 2.

The Huskies advanced to the championship game meaning that they had to be back in Cannington on Sunday at 3:00 to take on the tournament hosts.

From the opening faceoff in the championship game, gratitude for being invited to the tournament was set aside. Cannington fired the puck into Haliburton's end where defenceman Ryan O'Neill passed to Matthew Burk who tipped the puck into the centre ice area. Matt caught up to it and wheeled into Cannington's end. Drifting to his left, Matt fired the puck from his favourite spot into the net. On the next faceoff Cannington once again moved into Haliburton's end and this time they scored. Less than a minute into the game and both teams had scored. Definitely a sign of things to come.

With less than another minute elapsed Matt grabbed the puck in front of his own net and weaved his way down the ice for a replay of his first goal. Two more minutes and Haliburton was pressing the play in Cannington's end. Defenceman Ryan made two daring plays, sweep checking the puck off Cannington players' sticks into the corner. Finally, Burk scored his third of the game from the same spot as the first two, only this time he was down on his knees when he took the shot. The free wheeling game continued as Cannington popped in their second of the game. And what is this? On a power play Andrew Postlethwaite picked up the puck at the Haliburton blueline and flew down the ice for a repeat of his goal in the Bobcaygeon game. We knew you could do it Andrew.

As the first ended with the Huskies ahead by a score of 4-2 the second continued in the same fashion. In the first minute Devon kept the puck in at the blueline by flipping it ahead to Craigen. Mike's shot was stopped but Matt put the rebound in. Forty seconds later, Cannington got that one back. Cannington then promptly took a penalty. On the power play Haliburton hammered the puck at Cannington's net. Mike Craigen made a heads-up play at the side of the net. He feathered a pass back to Ryan at the blueline. Ryan took his time and got off a good shot that went through to the goalie who made the stop but yet again it was an alert Burk who flipped the rebound into the top of the net. Another minute, another scramble in front of the Cannington net, another goal for Matt.

Must be Cannington's turn again. Or is it? Cannington moved the play into Haliburton's end but Jase the Ace Henry stole the puck and hustled into Cannington's end. As a big Cannington defenceman checked him to the ice Jason shoved the puck into the open where, who else, Matt Burk lifted it into the net for his seventh goal of the game. With a score of 8 to 3 the second was not yet over. Cannington finished it with their fourth of the game.

In the third, the free-wheeling style of the first two periods slowed as the teams tired and checked more closely. Cannington managed to score late in the period but it was too little too late as Haliburton won the championship by a score of 8 to 5.

A well deserved championship it was. The Huskies got it all together for this tournament. Each and every player played well and they played as a cohesive unit from the high scoring line of Matthew "the bull" Burk, sniper Mike Craigen and Jason Henry to the tenacious checking unit of Greg Forgrave, Mike "bulldog" Morissette and Andrew Postlethwaite to the defence anchored by Ryan "sport" O'Neill and including the big burly defenders Devon Dart and Andrew Burch to old reliable in the net, Andrew Baker. Unfortunately two members of the team missed the tournament: Cole Glendinning who has been out since early December due to a tobogganing accident and Drew Robertson who got off to an early start on March break.

WEATHER WATCH

It's the fogs of March people must worry about as spring conditions shroud area

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

Beware the Ides of March. Or in Haliburton County, beware the shroud of fog which is bound to make driving dangerous.

On March 15, 44 B.C., Julius Caesar was murdered on the steps in Rome. "The Gods showed their displeasure with violent thunderstorms, hail, snow storms as well as extensive flooding for the rest of the month," says Haliburton weather watcher Jim Elstone.

All we've got to worry about is the fog. To understand how it's created, Mr. Elstone says to think about what happens when you take a cold pop out of the fridge—water condenses on the outside of the can.

When warm air moves over the cold snow, condensation forms in the air. Fog is also called ground clouds, Mr. Elstone says.

"We have the warm fronts close to us and we're in a very stable area so the fog will persist until something pushes it away," he says. At night the fog might lift, but it can easily return the next day during this season.

"It appears the warm weather will hang with us through the week till Monday," he adds. "There'll be a slight cooling on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday but it's still going to be above normal."

This is quite a change from early last week, when temperatures were well below normal. Starting on March 5, the low temperatures were as follows: -31, -30, -28, -25, and -19. Then it returned to normal on the Saturday, -2, and warmed to above normal on Sunday, when the low was -6 but the high was 10. That's five degrees above normal (but six degrees below the record).

With the higher temperatures came one inch of rain on Sunday night and Monday. (Mr. Elstone gives his report early Monday night.)

"This has certainly caused creeks to start moving and people should be very vigilant for air holes on the lakes," he cautions. Surface water seeps through the holes, sometimes made by fishermen, and wears away even larger holes. "There could be a lot of danger. If they don't know where they're going, people should stay off the lakes."

The vernal, or spring, equinox is on Tuesday, when the sun crosses the celestial equator. Days and nights are of equal length all over the world.

But Haliburton's warm weather doesn't hold a candle to areas south of us. "Ohio River Valley broke more than 100 records on Monday and in Baltimore River City it was 95. It even reached 85 in Chicago." That qualifies for a high summer temperature.

Meanwhile, Haliburtonians who are in Western United States to ski will find plenty of the white stuff covering the hills. Utah got a foot of a half of snow on Monday and Denver was paralyzed because of a very bad snow storm.

Around the world, the figure for the low and high temperature is easy to remember. "Siberia and Africa are the same except one was a minus and one was a plus: 48."

Weather trivia: On March 15, 1989, the fourth-largest recorded solar flare caused power disruptions in Quebec, resulting in a province-wide blackout.

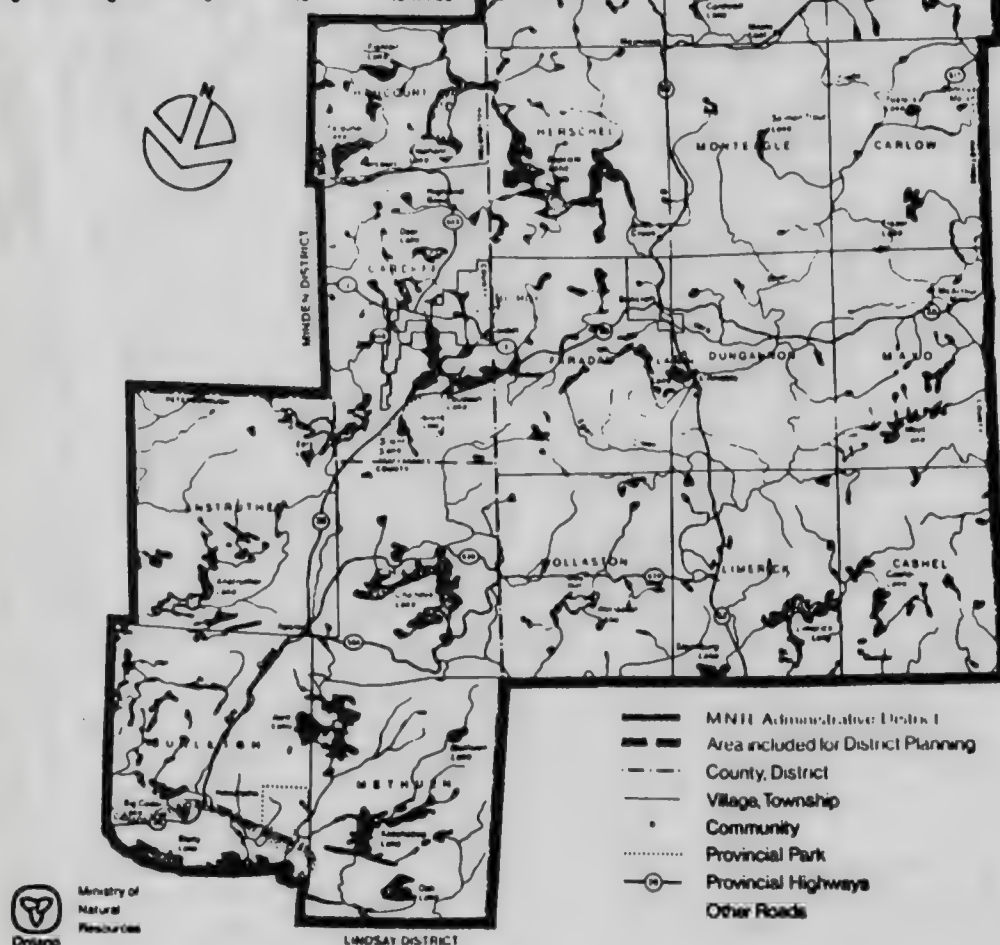

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT NOTICE

PUBLIC INSPECTION OF THE APPROVED TIMBER MANAGEMENT PLAN Bancroft Crown Management Unit (1990 - 2010)

The Ministry of Natural Resources has approved the Timber Management Plan for the Bancroft Crown Management Unit, 1990 - 2010, which includes all Crown Lands in Bancroft District.

BANCROFT DISTRICT

0 5 10 15 20 Kilometres
0 5 10 15 Miles

The Timber Management Plan outlines the objectives and strategies for the management of timber resources situated within the Bancroft Crown Management Unit. The plan identifies the potential areas of operation (harvest, renewal and maintenance) in addition to describing the secondary road corridors for the twenty-year period. Specific areas scheduled for operation during the first five years (1990 - 1995) and the location of planned roads are outlined in detail. The plan also addresses the concerns of other users of the forest resource.

You are invited to inspect the approved Timber Management Plan and all Supplementary Documentation at the Bancroft District Office of the Ministry of Natural Resources, during a thirty day period commencing March 5, 1990 through until April 3, 1990. Operations to be carried out under the direction of the approved Annual Work Schedule for the period April 1, 1990 to March 31, 1991 are also available for inspection.

Any groups or individual having concerns regarding the Timber Management Plan are asked to submit their written comments by April 3, 1990 to the following address: District Manager, Ministry of Natural Resources, Box 500, Bancroft, Ontario K0L 1C0.

The approved Timber Management Plan will remain available for public inspection at the Bancroft District Office during regular office hours during its five year term.

Additional information with respect to the Timber Management Plan can be obtained by contacting Mr. Bruce Fleck, Management Forester, at 613-332-3940.

'Eventually the lake will be a garbage dump. It will be a washroom so to speak,' worry cottagers on Bat Lake. They don't believe the lake can sustain further development.

that it "looks like pea soup" and has the "odour of rotting cabbage." "In spite of this, we still love it," and want to see protective measures taken by council when considering development, said Koivusalo.

Cottagers had no objection to Yates' initial plan of severing the entire 42-acre property into four lots. Ratepayers are concerned Yates will try to sever the rest of the lot in the future, said Koivusalo. "We're worried there are plans to develop the whole thing, not just one lot."

Deputy-reeve Bern Berry explained there is no basis for council to reject the rezoning. Council looks to "other government officials" such as the Ministries of Natural Resources and Environment for the answers. And these agencies have offered no objection.

Grahame Wales of the Minden MNR office contacted the municipality that morning to state that his ministry has no objection because Bat Lake has no lake trout, and is a warm water lake.

A letter from the environment ministry names lakes which they are concerned with, and Bat Lake isn't included on the list, Berry continued.

Berry also pointed out that four lots on 900 foot frontage quite a bit larger than the minimum requirement of 132 foot frontage each, although he allowed "there's no doubt maybe that 900 feet could be chopped up again."

Councillor Mike Maher said it is possible Bat Lake wasn't included on the environment ministry's list because it is so small.

To avoid similar confusion, Councillor Bob Sisson suggested that ministry representatives should attend the meetings to explain why they have no objections. "They should be here to explain instead of us."

Councillor Lewis Stevens said the ratepayers are being unfair. "You're saying you 14 people are fine (to pollute the lake), but no more should be allowed."

"Those new people might not be aware of the fragility of the lake," said Koivusalo.

Ratepayers are trying to avoid the possibility that activity around the lake will increase in the future, leading to further deterioration of water quality. "It's going to die."

Reeve Ray Moore reiterated that it's not in council's hands to reject the rezoning proposal unless it receives such advice from experts. Yates has met all criteria of the planning aspects.

The rezoning can be appealed before an Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) hearing, Moore told the ratepayers. "You people have every right to object. That's part of the process. But council can only work on the information of experts."

Maher said association members could purchase the other parcel. The price shouldn't be too steep because the property is classified as wetland. However, this aspect should also act as an assurance that the property won't be developed, he said.

In 1981, the OMB rejected a proposed development on the lake, Koivusalo said. Moore answered that the proposal was commercial. "There's quite a difference between commercial and a cottage."

Koivusalo asked council to suggest that Yates conduct a lake capacity study before allowing the development, to ensure the lake can handle more buildings.

Although council has no authority to make that request on a severance, Moore said, the ratepayers could make such a request at the OMB hearing if the rezoning is appealed.

Another association member, Mr.

Noetzel, calculated that the 2,000 foot frontage and 132 foot minimum would allow 15 lots. Fill could be bulldozed into wetland areas, he said. "You might as well fill in the whole lake."

Council told Noetzel there is no way the MNR would allow this, but Noetzel disagreed. "The ministry has no objection to four lots, so it won't have objection to 15 lots," he said.

"You can not give us a written guarantee (more development won't be approved)," Noetzel said. "You might as well fill in the whole lake, because it's useless then. Eventually the lake will be a garbage dump. It will be a washroom, so to speak."

Bat Lake Road resident Ross Warburton doesn't live on the lake, but has spent much time there hunting and fishing. He said Koivusalo is mistaken in thinking there is no water coming into the lake, which "is part of a water chain."

Because the area features swampland, a high cliff and an island, "there is no way on earth the MNR would ever let them fill it in," said Warburton. "They could never develop that end."

But Koivusalo wasn't assured. "It'll just be a green lake and nobody will enjoy it."

Association-member Peggy Schultz said the ministries don't necessarily consider the overall well-being of the lake and its surrounding habitat in assessments.

Berry said he understands the cottagers' concerns, but "if the MNR has no problem (with the proposal), then who am I to say there is a problem with it?"

"No objection based on what?" asked Schultz. Just because there are no lake trout, doesn't mean the lake water quality isn't significant, she said.

Moore suggested the association "apply a little pressure" to the ministries to have them perform their own testing and possibly close the lake off from further development. "That's reason to defer your decision," Schultz told him.

Since association members have no objection to the present four-lot proposal, a move to have the lake flagged against development could be considered for the future, said Maher.

Meanwhile, those who purchase the three lots will have the same interests as association members, said Maher. "They don't want to fertilize the lake."

After closing the public meeting, the rezoning bylaw was read a first and second time, with a third and final reading scheduled for the March 22 meeting.

Moore said the two readings of the bylaw are "getting it on its way," while giving the ratepayers two weeks to come up with any strengthening support for their objections. If not, the rezoning will be passed on that date.

In Stan's world, a little thanks is called for second hand and knew how to fix anything. Self-sufficiency was a cornerstone of their life and nothing was ever wasted, just recycled.

Kate had a optimistic outlook on life, always ready with a smile and a plate of carrot cake and coffee. This was a good thing because Stan could be the worst doormat and gloomer around. He believed it was just a matter of time before the world economic system, not to mention Canada's, collapsed and when it did, they would be ready. He hated government and its infringement on every-day life. He believed that if the rest of the population would only follow their example, there would be no debt, no one would go hungry and the civil service count in this country would fall to near zero. He was a hard man to argue with.

The garage and kitchen were filled with papers, for Stan believed in keeping a written record of everything. Bills, newspaper clippings, old business transactions, ideas that came to him in the night: he kept them all and had an elaborate filing system. Unfortunately, much to Kate's frustration, not everything got filed.

As I said at the beginning, if you had just met Stan, you might find him loud, cross, pessimistic and maybe even bullying. But it was more his manner than his true nature. Stan had had some tough disappointments in his life and his exterior was in many ways a defense against even more. He might complain about the habits and excesses of others, but if you were ever in trouble, he and Kate would come running, no questions asked.

A typical example happened several years ago. A neighbour of theirs had been drinking far too much. His dogs went hungry and the man's appearance left a lot to be desired, to say nothing of his place. Stan, always concerned about property values and hating to see animals neglected, complained bitterly to all who would listen that he would report this fellow to some authority if he didn't straighten himself out. To make matters worse, the man would tie one on and then get behind the wheel of his ratty old Chev. He didn't go very far, usually just to the other end of the road to visit a drinking buddy, but he'd weave all over the road there and back.

One night, just as Stan and Kate were getting ready to go to bed, they heard their neighbour's Chev making its way down the road. You couldn't miss it, because the vehicle had lost its muffler long ago. Stan cursed it under his breath and was about to say something to Kate when they both realized the sound had abruptly stopped. Wondering what the heck was going on, Stan looked out the kitchen window toward the road. He could just barely make out the headlights through the trees. They weren't moving and they weren't at the neighbour's house. Curious, Stan threw on his jacket and boots over his pajamas and went outside to investigate.

The car had gone off the road and come to rest on a snow-covered pile of hay in the next field. As soon as Stan saw this, he saw something else. The engine was still running and the car was on fire, smoke billowing out from under the hood, shot through with the odd flicker of orange. Running toward the vehicle, he saw that the driver was slumped over the wheel. By now the flames were more noticeable, edging toward the driver's door.

With a quick look around, to see if anyone else had come running—no one had—Stan whipped off his jacket and started flailing at the flames by the car door. They were moving quickly and he knew it was just a matter of time before they found the gas tank and the whole thing went up like a bomb. The driver still hadn't moved.

Somehow he managed to get the now hot car door open and pulled the unconscious driver out. He dragged him as far away as he thought safe and tried to rouse the man. At first he received no response. Then the man started mumbling and coughing, rolling his head from side to side as if he didn't want to wake up. The smell of whiskey was overpowering. Then like a cannon, the flames found the car's tank and the whole field lit up for a few brief seconds. This was enough to fully awaken the man on the ground. He opened his eyes and looked up at Stan.

"Jesus Christ, what are you doing?" he asked, trying to push Stan away. Then the flames caught his eye and he half-raised himself up, looking in their direction. "You've set my car on fire, you bastard!" he slurred, now trying to pull himself to a standing position. He stood there, uncertainly trying to keep his balance while he called Stan every name in the book.

"You stupid drunk! I've just saved your life!" hollered Stan. In disgust, he turned on his heel and walked away, leaving the man cursing at the stars.

You know, for the longest time, the story went around that Stan had indeed set fire to the man's vehicle. No wonder he takes a pessimistic outlook on occasion.

FINAL PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice of fish stocking on selected waterbodies within Minden District

The Ministry of Natural Resources, Minden District, is proceeding with the proposal to stock the following waterbodies with the indicated fish species:

Lake	Township	PROPOSED FISH SPECIES
		1st priority	2nd priority
Concession	Galway	Lake Trout	Splake
South Anson	Anson	Lake Trout	Splake
Ketch	Hindon	Brook Trout	Splake
Bat	Guilford	Splake
Copper	Lutterworth	Splake
Smudge	Digby	Splake
West Victoria	Digby	Splake
Victoria	Digby	Rainbow Trout	Largemouth Bass
Sprat	Hindon	Rainbow Trout
Charles	Monmouth	Largemouth Bass
Nogies	Galway	Largemouth Bass

This stocking effort is being made to create new artificial and new self-sustaining fisheries, thereby providing additional angling opportunities for lake trout, brook trout, splake, rainbow trout, and largemouth bass.

This project is being planned and implemented under the Ministry's Approved Class Environmental Assessment for Fish Stocking in New Waters.

You are invited to direct any questions and concerns regarding this proposal to the District Manager, Minden District, by March 30, 1990. The opportunity to request an individual assessment is available, if necessary. If we have not been advised as to any serious concerns by the above date, the project plans will be finalized and the project may commence without further public consultation.

WANT TO APPEAL YOUR ASSESSMENT?

You still have time to appeal your 1989 assessment if you feel your home or business property has been improperly assessed. Your assessment is important because the amount of property tax you will pay in 1990 depends on it. The assessed value of your property is multiplied by the municipal and school mill rates to determine your property taxes.

Notices of Property Valuation were mailed to property owners and tenants whose assessments have changed since last year. Open house information sessions were held in your area to give you the opportunity to ask questions and correct any errors.

The Assessment Roll was delivered to your municipality on February 27, 1990 and will be used to calculate the taxes you will pay in 1990. You can review the Roll at your municipal office during regular business hours. If you believe your property has been improperly assessed and you have not yet registered an appeal, you still have until March 20, 1990 to mail or deliver your appeal to the Assessment Review Board. And remember, even if you did not receive a Notice of Property Valuation, you still have the right to appeal.

Appeal deadline: March 20, 1990

The Assessment Review Board is an independent tribunal under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Ministry of the Attorney General. It is intended to provide you with an additional opportunity to have your assessment reviewed if, in your opinion, it is not fair and equitable with the assessment of similar properties in your area. The Review Board is more informal and relaxed than a regular court of law. You may present your own case, retain a lawyer, or ask a relative or friend to speak as your agent.

To help you in filing your appeal, Notice of Appeal forms are available from the Assessment Review Board, your Regional Assessment Office, or your municipal office. You can also use the reverse side of a Notice of Property Valuation, or write a letter giving the property address and roll number along with your reasons for appealing. Appeals should be forwarded to the Regional Registrar of the Assessment Review Board at the address shown below.

If you appealed your previous assessment, it will be necessary to lodge an appeal against your assessment with the Assessment Review Board each year, if the appeal against your previous assessment has not yet been settled, or your 1989 Notice of Property Valuation does not reflect the most recent decision of the Board.

In those parts of Ontario designated for French Language Services, you can appear before a bilingual (English/French) Appeal Board. Please check the space provided on your appeal form if you wish to use this service.

A second bylaw forbids excavations without a building permit, and demands that construction begin within 60 days or the municipality will have the excavation back-filled at the owner's expense.

Hughes was hired to excavate three major development sites owned by Bruce Harris, Brad Bradamore and Ted Reid.

"For the past year, you have watched your planning committee abuse your official plan and the bylaws of our town for their own personal

"What do you call the town, who destroyed Welch's store and sold the property at a profit? That makes our own council flippers also."

Reeve Ray Moore thanked Hughes for the presentation, but said "I don't want to open this up to a big, heavy debate." He said council would note Hughes' concerns and the petition.

Opponents have the option of paying $125 to object to the bylaw and request an Ontario Municipal Board hearing, Moore told Hughes, who replied: "No problem."

But Harris changed his mind with the election of "virtually a whole new council with intelligent, progressive people such as Ray Moore and Lewis Stevens... Then this new council hired a supremely intelligent, very progressive, open-minded, extremely competent and energetic building inspector, Brad Bradamore." (Bradamore was fired by council last June).

His planned development projects in the municipality included a glass company (which he would run), a motel, several stores and restaurants, and apartment units. He also became involved in the proposed Mount Minden development.

"Then everything fell apart," Harris writes. He said he received PAC approval for seven severances and a zoning change for Mount Minden, and paid $2,000 to the county for these applications. Chairman Elliott and Deputy-Reeve Berry were not present at the meeting.

At the next PAC meeting, which Harris attended to request minor measurement changes, "I was informed that the whole project would have to go through as a plan of subdivision. Elliott and Berry were present at this meeting," Harris writes.

"I was dumbfounded and shocked because at that point I knew I'd been shafted and all my plans for everything were immediately destroyed."

As a result of this meeting, Harris said he sold Mount Minden and has listed his excavated commercial lot for sale. Now he vows to continue pressing for the resignations of Berry, Elliott and Payne. "I will not do anything until these people are out and a stable political climate returns to this community."

Because of Elliott and Payne's involvement in real estate sales, "unless a project gets the nod from them, it doesn't get passed. They cannot possibly be impartial to the various proposal put before the PAC given their potential for personal financial gain," Harris says.

He also says a government investigation of Deanwood Investments (Dean Elliott's company) should be in order "to see if there is the possibility of a conflict of interest existing, and hence appropriate action being necessary."

After the letter was read, Berry made a short statement: "Let the letter speak for itself. My record speaks for myself."

Brad Bradamore made the final presentation to council, reading a prepared statement which stated a few minor errors in the bylaws' wording.

After reviewing the Ontario Building Code Act, Bradamore found "there is in no way any regulation granting you authority to regulate excavations of property."

Calling this bylaw "a mockery of the system," Bradamore warned of potential liabilities if the municipality attempts to "enforce a bylaw that will not stand up in court."

Bradamore also said it's "ludicrous" to insist upon a site plan agreement registered on title prior to rezoning, "because the liability to the municipality would be more than they could afford." Some developers will assume they have rezoning approval after meeting the criteria for a site plan agreement, but this isn't necessarily true, he warned.

"Are you guys prepared for this? I recommend you act only on the advice of your solicitor when it is not clear you have a statute that backs up whatever bylaw you propose."

"I have witnessed the red tape and the 'slow-them-down, screw-them-up, do-it-again' attitude."

vendetta against anyone trying to develop the east side of Bobcaygeon Road," Hughes read from a letter he sent to council.

PAC chairman Dean Elliott lives across the road from the proposed developments, Hughes pointed out. "I have witnessed the red tape and the 'slow them down, screw them up, tell them it's wrong, tell them it's right, do it again' attitude ever since a plot plan came under discussion for Doug (Johnson) and Ted (Reid's) lot."

Accusing the planning committee of "deliberately" holding up Johnson and Reid's plaza proposal, Hughes asked council to remove all real estate people (chairman Elliott and member Bill Payne) from the committee.

Hughes asked that the two bylaws be vetoed. "If we all work together, and try to help rather than hinder, our town will have its stores, and there won't be any excavating sites to complain about," he said.

Hughes also responded to comments by Deputy-Reeve Berry that Bradamore (who sold Harris and Reid their properties) is a speculator rather than a developer, and flipping land at a profit. Everyone sells at a profit, and council did the same with the recent sale of the Village Green parkette, he said.

Moore said he's aware of other complaints to the bylaws, but "the opinion of council is we're doing right by this."

"What about the planning problem?" Hughes asked, referring to his request for the resignations of Elliott and Payne. "We still have a planning problem."

To the consternation of Hughes, Moore said the matter would be discussed at another time during a closed meeting, but couldn't guarantee whether council would come up with a resolution.

Next, the Deputy-Reeve suggest the clerk read out a letter from Bruce Harris. "It would pain me, but it would be nice if the letter were made available," said Berry.

Harris opens his letter by demanding the resignations of Berry, Elliott and Payne.

After experiencing difficulty with Brighton councillors in attempting to establish a 150-house subdivision there, Harris returned to his former home of Minden "vowing never to tackle municipal politicians again."

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT NOTICE of PUBLIC INSPECTION for the APPROVED TIMBER MANAGEMENT PLAN for the LESLIE M. FROST CENTRE CROWN MANAGEMENT UNIT

The Ministry of Natural Resources has approved the Timber Management Plan for the Frost Centre Crown Management Unit, 1990 - 2010, which includes all Crown Land in the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre.

The Timber Management Plan outlines the objectives and strategies for the management of timber resources situated within the Frost Centre Crown Management Unit. This Unit encompasses parts of Sherborne, Hindon and Stanhope Townships in the County of Haliburton and part of Ridout Township in the District Municipality of Muskoka. The plan identifies the potential areas of operation (harvest, maintenance and renewal) in addition to describing the primary and secondary road corridors for the twenty-year period from 1990 - 2010. Specific areas scheduled for operation during the first five years (1990 - 1995) and the location of planned roads are outlined in detail. The plan also addresses the concerns of other users of the forest resource.

You are invited to inspect the approved Timber Management Plan and all Supplementary Documentation at the Frost Centre office of the Ministry of Natural Resources, Dorset, Ontario, during a thirty day period commencing March 13, 1990 through until April 11, 1990. Operations to be carried out under this plan are scheduled to commence on April 16, 1990, under the direction of the approved Annual Work Schedule which will also be available for inspection after April 16, 1990.

Any group or individual having concerns regarding the Timber Management Plan are asked to submit their written comments by April 11, 1990 to the following address:

Director,
Ministry of Natural Resources
Dorset, Ontario P0A 1E0

The approved Timber Management Plan will remain available for public inspection at the Frost Centre office any time during its five year term.

Additional information with respect to the Timber Management Plan can be obtained by contacting Debbie Pella Keen, Forestry Specialist, at (705) 766-2451.

9.9% financing offer with no limit on the amount financed available only to qualified retail buyers financing their purchase through GMAC on a maximum 48 month/minimum 12 month financing contract. Example: $20,000 loan at 48 months at 9.9% A.P.R., monthly payment is $500.79. Cost of borrowing is $4,301.92. Assuming a $1000 rebate on the alternative, legislation requires that the value of the $1000 rebate be included in the cost of borrowing example in order to arrive at an effective interest rate. In the example given, the effective interest rate would be 12.25% A.P.R., and the total cost of borrowing including $1000 rebate not taken, would be $5,301.92.
Or choose a $1000 rebate. Offer available only to qualified retail buyers, and can only be applied to the transaction. Offers available on new and unused or demonstrated 1990, 1989, and prior year models of Chevy & GMC C/K full-size pickup trucks (excluding extended cab models) purchased from dealer inventory. Offer valid for a limited time starting March 2, 1990 to close of business March 31, 1990, or while quantities last.

Some models may not be immediately available from dealer stock. Fleet orders and leases are ineligible for these offers. The buyer will be responsible for the payment of applicable taxes, including federal sales tax, license and applicable freight charges at the time of the transaction.
All credit applications will be subject to approval by GMAC, which may require a down payment should the buyer's credit not meet its standards. Offer includes Dealer and Dealer Association participation.
††Based on 48 month lease/retail price of $17,844 for a Chevy or GMC full-size pickup to qualified retail buyers. Lease rate in effect for vehicles delivered from March 2 to March 31, 1990. GMAC may require a down payment should the buyer's credit not meet its standards. Security deposit may be required. Some packages conditions may apply. 36 and 48 month plans also available. Freight charges, insurance, license, and applicable taxes not included. See your individual Dealer for freight charges. Dealer may lease for less. THE FIRST BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED GENESIS

1 IN the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.

2 And the earth was without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

3 And God said, Let there be light: and there was light.

4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided the light from the darkness.

5 And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And the evening and the morning were the first day.

6 And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters.

7 And God made the firmament, and divided the waters which were under the lesser light to rule the night: And God made the stars also.

17 And God set them in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth, to rule over the day and night, and to divide the light from the darkness: and God saw that it was good.

18 And there was evening and the morning the fourth day.

19 And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven.

21 And God created great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly, after their kind; and every winged fowl after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

22 And God blessed them, saying, Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the GIGGLES RIPPLE PAST ONE DESK TO another as the students whisper the word amongst themselves. Rev. John Phillips, standing chalk-in-hand at the front of the Grade 8 classroom, picks up the word as the wave passes by.

"What's that?" he asks. More giggles punctuate the embarrassed silence.

Then one boy straightens his back and defiantly says "Sexual." Take that.

Rev. Phillips nods and writes the word on the blackboard. "Sexual. Oh well, scary that word that pops up in all the Grade 8 classes."

The Anglican priest was getting response to his favourite ploy: "Imagine that next Saturday all of you are getting married and I have a question to ask—not who, I'll leave that up to you—but 'What will my marriage be like?'"

"Exceptional" is the first response. The giggles erupt when a student murmurs "sexual", expecting Rev. Phillips to be either abashed by their perceptions, or critical of their thought processes.

Instead, he tells them that last weekend he was part of a youth retreat and the same question, and answer, came up. "Someone said sex doesn't have anything to do with God. Well, God created us, man and woman. But we'll talk about that a bit later. First, what are some of the other words you'd use..."

ACROSS HALIBURTON VILLAGE and later that Wednesday afternoon, Pastor Brian Plouffe is asking the Grades 1 and 2 students a few questions of his own.

The children had just joined his team from the Baptist Church in a rousing chorus of "I've got the joy, joy, joy/ Down in my heart/ I'm so happy/ I've got the love of Jesus in my heart."

"You may have the love of Jesus in your heart, but how do you get it?" Pastor Plouffe (the students call him Pastor Brian) asks. "By caring and being joyful," is one reply. "You say a special prayer... You can read the Bible... Ask him."

Jesus was sent to the earth "to forgive you for all the bad things you do," the Baptist minister continues. "What are the bad things you do?"

Hands dart up, and it's the girls in particular who enjoy this question, frequent recipients of their litany of bad things: "Hitting... lying... biting... pushing... pinching... pulling hair..."

"What about talking bad to your parents?" Pastor Plouffe asks, eliciting dozens of nods of approval.

"The Bible," he next says, "calls these bad things sins and we ask God and Jesus to forgive us. One thing we know about God is that He's good."

And then, stressing his point in the way best loved by children, Pastor Plouffe asks them to join in on another song. "God is so good/ He died for me/ ...He rose again/ ...He's coming back/ ... I love him so..."

"Can we sing it again?" an eager young boy asks.

'Jesus really loves you and so do we but unfortunately, this is the last week we can come in,' Pastor Brian Plouffe tells his adoring Grade 1 and 2 students. 'But Jesus is still going to be with you.'

WHEN STUDENTS RETURN from the March Break, part of school life as they, and their parents, once knew it will be changed. Regular visits from local clergy will no longer be part of the curriculum.

The decision was made at the last Haliburton County Board of Education meeting. Trustees were responding to a recent Supreme Court of Ontario ruling that said teaching only Christian precepts in a publicly-funded institution violated the Charter of Rights and Freedoms. Too often, the judges said, religious training was an indoctrination of Christian values and principles.

Certainly, the practices in some classes were purely subjective. In Elgin County, where the challenge to religious education began, members of the Bible group told students that people who are mentally handicapped are born of the devil. Some parents objected and the ball started to roll.

In Haliburton County, only trained clergy could go into the classrooms. And reaction to the training was also subjective: Because the clergy are generally well-respected in the community, people trusted that they would say no evil to the students.

Though "in a sense, it's not so much trust of the individual, but that people's connection with the churches was important," says Rev. Phillips. "The overall guideline was if you go out on a limb, you're done. We couldn't go into specific dogmatic issues that would intend to inflame. There was a built-in safety line and people had the right to complain."

Last Wednesday was the last day Rev. Phillips and Pastor Plouffe were allowed to teach the students about Christian faith. The Echo sat in on the classes, to hear what was said, and to find out what the students thought of all this.

"I'M GOING TO TRY to tell you everything I know about God in 20 minutes," Rev. Phillips says with his trademark laugh. (One of the girls laughs every time Rev. Phillips does.)

"I find it very easy to think God is way out there somewhere," he says, motioning towards heaven. "The reality is that God enters into the world far more than I like and I'm comfortable with."

Reminding them of a story he told them about someone trapped in a lifeboat on Head Lake, Rev. Phillips says "God came into the world in a real way and said 'There's help.' He did something we couldn't do."

That's when he asks the students to describe God. Their answers are hesitant at first, but once they see their friends taking part, they are far more forthcoming: "Powerful, loving, forgiving, caring, holy, creative..."

"Would you expect God to steal?" Rev. Phillips prods. "Honest, helpful, merciful, ruler" are added to the list.

Once they stop giggling and blushing about "sexual", the students also are quick to describe their perfect mate. "Honest, forgiving, loving, co-operative, caring, understanding, caring, understanding, trusting, dependable, fun, happy, long-lasting, faithful, considerate..."

"Some marriages don't have these things and have other hurtful things," Rev. Phillips reminds them. Then he asks "What do you notice about these two lists?"

"They're the same," says one girl. A boy replies "God is what you want your marriage to be."

Opening up his Bible to the Old Testament, Rev. Phillips says that many people wonder how words written more than 2,000 years ago can have any relevance today. "God created man in his own image, male and female. What is God's image? Us."

"Some sense God being a man"—Rev. Phillips puffs up his chest in mock macho-ness—"sitting up there on his throne in heaven, with a graying beard, incredibly handsome"—Rev. Phillips tosses back his head—"like some of us here."

Because Genesis says God created man and then woman, some people think women "are considered second, as an afterthought." The girls laugh, the boys snicker.

"The truth is we were never ever created to be alone. And man is generic, it means all of us. God took the things that were part of Him and put them in all of us."

Time for more questions. (Rev. Phillips was a teacher before he became an Anglican priest.) "How do we express love one to another?" he asks, referring to the second list on the board. The giggling starts again, and the priest knows why. In the other Grade 8 class that morning, he says as he draws an arrow on the board, the students instantly connected loving with sex.

"Sex is only a part of love," Rev. Phillips says.

Please turn to page 18

PEOPLE

Lessons preferred to be at school

"Sex itself doesn't necessarily involve love and it can be painful... Ladies get ready for this because you want to make the right choice."

Thoughts now turn to friendships. What do you expect from friends? "They help you with your problems. You ask them..." Embarrassed, the girl blushes mid-sentence and the other girls giggle. Young teenagers do a lot of giggling.

People get into problems when they start eliminating words from those lists, Rev. Phillips says. "God created us with all of this stuff but we change it and take away parts."

"What if a friend tells you 'I'll meet you at recess at the big tree at the other side of the mountain' and you sit there for 20 minutes feeling like a real idiot because he doesn't show up? I can demand my friends be dependable. In loving relationships, if they put me in situations where I'm not being uplifted and they are tearing me down, what should I do? Affect change."

Drugs and alcohol are two things which do not uplift people. "I've seen friends say 'Try it, it's okay.' It's not okay. I've seen marriages go down, I see relationships damaged. One woman told me her husband's drug habit was tearing them apart because all the money was going into drugs. I've seen a variety of relationships hurt because the love isn't there."

"All I can say is God is really effective in this world, more than we want to know. God works in this classroom, in our family, and the truth is we have choices to make. We can choose to do well in our relationships... My suggestion is that if you find yourselves in relationships where people are hitting on you, that you talk to somebody and that you affect change. You have a right to say 'No, deal with me well.'"

His questions over, Rev. Phillips asks the students if they have any questions.

"Why is this your last time," one boy asks. Rev. Phillips replies "The government has said that under our civil rights, (we ministers) don't have the right to teach people about any specific religion."

A visitor asks the students what they think of that. "Maybe they could wrap it up in other religions," one suggests. Could Rev. Phillips do that? "Very often," he replies, "we don't understand other religions and we come from different backgrounds. For me, a handy way to think of the world is with a Christian sense of values. It would be very difficult (to teach other religions)."

"I think it should be open for what schools want," opines one student about the province's banning of religious training in all public non-Roman Catholic schools. "The adults should ask how the children feel."

"I think they should have it in class," adds another. "We're used to learning in class."

"Some people can't make it to church so it's helpful... For some of us that's the only way we learn."

"In church, some children sometimes don't like to go to Sunday School so they sit in the pews. When you do, the words might go over their head, but at school, (the minister) is explaining it differently. At church it's boring but he makes it interesting here."

"You feel more comfortable here... You can laugh," says the girl who always laughs at Rev. Phillips' laugh.

"This brings friends together more. (The discussion on relationships) is not something that's brought up in class."

"It makes you feel better and builds your confidence. Rev. Phillips doesn't criticize you when you say something. He listens and tries to understand. There's no right or wrong."

Through this conversion, teacher Roy Scott is impressed by the level of articulation. As the students have said, this type of conversation isn't heard very often in regular classrooms. "I've got the sense this is very important. And these are the people (the new rules) are affecting."

THERE ARE A FEW SURPRISES over at Victoria Street School, too.

The time has gone quickly for the students. After singing songs, the students listen in rapt attention to a story set in Agapeland. (Agape, selfless love, is a cornerstone of Christianity.) Benny the bear is on his way to a birthday party and his basket carries the berries for dessert.

His mother had told him to keep his paws out of the basket, but along the way, Benny decides he has to check to make sure the berries are okay. He eats a berry. "Oh, just one more won't hurt," he convinces himself. Before he knows it, Benny has eaten the entire basket. What will he do now? he cries.

Scooter the snail wanders by and wonders how it can be raining when the sun is shining. Wait a minute. That's not rain, it's Benny's tears. To cheer his friend up, Scooter sings a song which just happens to coincide with today's lesson—"Self-control should be the goal/ To be more like Jesus."

Benny brightens and continues on his way to the party. Miraculously, there on the path is a berry bush, and Benny can pick enough berries to fill his basket again. He almost celebrates by eating one, but then he remembers self-control.

Pastor Plouffe says he can relate. What happens when you try to have just one potato chip? You end up eating them all. It's alright to eat all the chips in your own bowl, but you need self-control to prevent you from eating your brothers' and sisters'.

This is all part of series of lessons on "fruits of the spirit"—love, joy, peace, kindness, goodness, faith, gentleness and self-control. As yet another song says, "This is the fruit of the spirit you'll find in Galatians Chapter 5 Verse 25/ If you're walking close to God, his fruit will grow in you."

But now the lessons are going to end, Pastor Plouffe tells the children. "Jesus really loves you and so do we but unfortunately, this is the last week we can come in. But Jesus is still going to be with you."

Students like Rev. Phillips because he explains things on their level

Pastor Plouffe encourages them to ask their parents to let them become involved in the church of their choice. At present, St. George's Anglican Church is the only local church which offers an after-school program.

"You always remember that even if you don't go to church, Jesus loves you. And when you see us on the street, make sure you say hi."

"I have a book about David," one boy says earnestly.

When the children are asked if they think learning about Jesus in school is a good thing, someone says "It's good for you."

"You want to care about other people instead of just thinking about yourself," replies another earnest boy.

"It's good to learn it at school because you can get more things to learn."

"You can learn love and peace."

"You can see some people you already know and like."

"I like the singing... I like the puppet show."

Some religions don't include Jesus though, and children can feel uncomfortable talking about Him at school, a visitor says. Would they feel awkward if they had to leave the classroom, or not take part? The children and Pastor Plouffe nod their heads in agreement.

"Have a vote," one youngster suggests.

It's unlikely the children's views will be sought as the Ministry of Education and the local school system struggle with the new rules. Religion might once again be discussed in the classrooms, but Christianity will only be one part of the discussion.

Where do the local churches go from here?

NOW THAT RELIGIOUS CLASSES can't be held in schools, local churches must meet the challenge of reaching out to young children in other ways.

"The churches, all Christians, have to be more effective in dealing with their own children," says Rev. John Phillips of St. George's Anglican Church in Haliburton. "We have to realize our own responsibility if our beliefs are strong enough."

Churches must now "allow their children to touch their faith. For younger ones, they learn most from significant people in their lives. If we as adults demonstrate Christianity is unimportant, they'll pick that up, too."

When asked if some parents appreciated the schools (through ministerial visits) teaching religion, just as some might appreciate not suffering the awkwardness of teaching sex education, Rev. Phillips says "it's like learning French—it's nice if someone else teaches it. For a lot of our population, they say 'It wouldn't be bad if children learn something about it but I don't want to teach it myself.'"

"It's the relinquishing of responsibility which poses the problem."

Responsibility is now firmly back on the shoulders of the church and parents. "In our village, we have to be much more active in trying to deal well in our own (religious) community and help people enter into it, in youth work, in Sunday School, in Bible study."

Two inter-denominational groups meet at St. George's. On Tuesday nights, 40 young members of the Friendship Club meet to do crafts and activities around scripture readings. There's also a youth group, for students in Grade 7 and beyond.

"The hope for me is that more parents will start to believe it's important... Churches haven't disappeared in Toronto where they haven't had religious education for years."

At the same time, however, Rev. Phillips says that being able to go into the classrooms was a blessing. "That really was a Godsend. I will mourn its passing."

Rev. Jim Crighton of Haliburton United Church had to adjust to ministers being in the schools to begin with. When he arrived from Saskatchewan a few years ago, he was surprised to be asked to teach the Grade 7s about religion.

Not a trained teacher, he initially felt uncomfortable, especially as there were no board of education guidelines about what to teach. He learned to get his cues from the students, who, like those in Rev. Phillips' class, are engulfed by their burgeoning sexuality.

"I've never found it easy," he says, and now he's torn because the classes are ended. Putting words to what he feels is still difficult.

Society is in a state of flux, he believes, and the dropping of the classes is just one sign of that. "We don't live in a Christian society anymore. Before you had people constantly at work legislating Christian beliefs. Law reflects society and because (traditional beliefs) aren't strongly held, the law is weakened."

"...I wouldn't say anything we do is indoctrination, however. What I try to do is present a view of the world from a Christian perspective."

So while he believes that many people are unaware of other religions—"Some of the students were surprised Jesus was a Jew"—and more understanding about them is needed, he has problems with a system which stresses tolerance above all things. "My purpose in being a minister is not to teach tolerance but I think tolerance is a virtue. There's a danger in making tolerance an absolute because then you tolerate everything. Perhaps there are some things it's worth being intolerant of."

"... If you go back in history," Rev. Crighton adds, "the public school board was the Protestant school board and now it's the school board which represents everyone who is not a Catholic. Neutrality is a myth and society is in general saying we don't want things from a Christian perspective."

"I think the Church will be healthier if we viewed ourselves as a pagan society. If we are Christians, what does it mean? Let's be the company of the committed."

"I'm not saying (stopping the classes) won't do any harm. Let's say my children complain about learning square dancing at school. I could say to the board 'It's against my religion for my child to dance.' Then, when the child is allowed to do something else while the others dance, he could say his child is being made to feel different from the others. Therefore, the classes should end for everyone to make his child feel equal. "Where does it end? I don't think society is thinking things through."

"But is it the school's job (to teach that)? However, some people think school is the panacea for our ills. Education solves nothing. You're not going to change behaviour by education."

"Haliburton is unique in my experience and it's terrific kids here had that opportunity (of religious education). But the church can do its work without it. It's a fundamental mistake that faith can be taught. Faith is caught, not taught."

Guilford community mourns passing of Grenville Stamp

WEST GUILFORD NEWS

by: ELEANOR COOPER

The community has lost a very dear part of its life in the passing of Grenville Stamp. His active years will be remembered with pride, his later years with respect, as he bore his disability without becoming bitter.

His love for family continued through good times and bad and was returned in full measure by those closest to him as they continued in faithful care and love through continuous visits with him. This translation of love into action, particularly on wife Faye's part, is a worthy example to us all.

The host of friends and family who gathered for the funeral at the chapel in Minden and at the centre afterwards attested to the regard and place he held in our lives. Our sympathy will continue to be with the family in their bereavement.

Sylvia Sisson, District Zone Commander, attended the spring zone rally on Sunday, March 11 at the Lindsay Royal Canadian Legion. On February 23, Sylvia had the pleasure of presenting the essay awards to public speaking winner, Alain Sisson, her grandson, at his school assembly, to the surprise and satisfaction of the family.

Good wishes for total recovery go out to Gerald Sisson who is recovering from heart surgery; back home now, in Searchmont.

On March 8 approximately 60 women and some children gathered at the centre to celebrate (for the first time in this area) International Women's Day. We brought pot luck and made a grand meal of it, with many special touches to make it memorable: flowers and vases, courtesy Nancy's Flowers; braided wreaths of bread; colourful tablecloths; guest book; and music on tape. Sonny Cook began the supper with a special blessing over food, in a Canadian Indian ritual, which was the lighting by a candle of a rope of sweetgrass whose fragrance was carried from table to table. The food was bountiful, delicious, of great variety and duly appreciated.

Music and short presentations carried a serious, yet positive and optimistic atmosphere throughout the evening which ended just after 9 p.m. Judging by the enthusiasm it is an event that will bear repeating. Since far more money was offered than required for the rent of the hall, the suggestion made by Annegreth Gerrard will be put into action. Sending a child to summer camp who would otherwise not be able to go. We wish Ted Duncan well as he recovers in Haliburton Hospital from a mild stroke.

Relatives and friends of Neilson Owens are invited to share his birthday with him on April 14 at the centre.

Remember March 24 as the date for the Red Cross program at the centre. This gives you an opportunity to contribute without people canvassing the neighbourhood. The weather will surely be better than it was for last year's program. It is always a short one, with refreshments afterward.

ROBERTS/BRADSHAW: Sylvia Roberts and Garry Bradshaw exchanged marriage vows in Sundre, Alberta on November 17, 1989. Sylvia is the daughter of Frank and Jessie Roberts, Haliburton. Garry, originally from Grafton, Ontario and Sylvia now reside in Olds, Alberta.

Public speaker could make good reeve material

WILBERFORCE NEWS

by: WINNIE SCHOFIELD

After a very successful season, the Monmouth Minor Hockey League has begun the play-off games. The Novice team competed with Bancroft IGA on March 8 and a win saw them advance to the A Division. Luck held for the Atoms when they played against Apsley on March 9 resulting in a win of three games out of five and they too advanced to the A Division finals. Now we come to the PeeWees who played their first game with Apsley on March 10. This ended with a 2-2 tie.

Coming up on Sunday March 18 is the annual hockey tournament in memory of Tim Oram. The first game will begin at 10 a.m. in the Wilberforce arena. Six teams will be competing. The tournament is sponsored by Mike and Flo Oram and by Currie Motors.

Congratulations to Luke Barker who made March 3 a day of accomplishment by first playing an active part in the Atom play-off game, which resulted in a win for Wilberforce, and then travelling to Haliburton to attend the Youth Education public speaking. This was held at the Branch 129 Legion Hall. Luke, who is eleven, won the contest with his speech on Sewers. He should make good reeve material in a few years hence.

The bonspiel at the Wilberforce curling rink on March 9 and 10 was a roaring success. With his usual enthusiasm Don Fevreau took care of the organizing and running of the event which resulted in some fine competition. Don was also acting as skip and his rink came first winning the A division. Capturing the B position was the rink of Max Walsh. Ken Craig was the lucky third place winner with the rink of Dennis Card coming fourth, that of Dennis Fidler fifth and Gary Stoughton skipped his team to sixth spot. Sponsors of the A division was the Wilberforce IGA and that of the B division Wilberforce Veneer. Very much appreciated was the donation of prizes by various business people.

The Canadian Armed Forces has just sent an army contingent to Cyprus as part of the United Nations peace keeping force. Keeping harmony on the island between the Turks and the Greeks has been an ongoing project for some years with little friction arising but, perhaps because of the present unrest in Europe, incidents of rock throwing and similar disturbances are increasing. One of the soldiers involved in this mission has relatives in Wilberforce. Let us hope that nothing serious develops and that peace prevails.

Sympathy to all families and friends of Bert Jones of Shadow Lake Road and a good friend, Cora Lake, of Coboconk who died recently.

Hope to head some of our sick folks are feeling better soon: George Shepherd, Vi Young, Nora Brandon, Lil Platt, Tracey Waite being but a few of them.

Happy birthday to Bonnie Camirand on Thursday, March 1. She was presented with a birthday cake complete with lit candles, a number of cards including one signed by all the "Coby" legion bingo players who also sang Happy Birthday to her and a beautiful hat which she wore while calling bingo numbers. It was made for her by her daughter.

Leonard Greer of Norland was the winner of the Norland Volunteer Firefighters Hockey Pool for Saturday, March 3.

Bonnie Walker and Kelly Hards recently enjoyed a great evening when they attended a "black tie" event. It was the Celebrity Ski for Pepsi Substance Abuse Foundation with Rita Coolidge as hostess, Kurt Russell, Ray Parker Jr. and Koolha Bovine were just three of the celebrities present whom Bonnie was photographed with.

Amy and Larry Coker of Utterson, Ontario visited at the homes of Mary and John Pyke, Helen Graham and later at our house on Friday, March 2. They showed us some lovely snapshots of the many deer who come up to their lawns every winter where Amy and Larry feed them. One bit of humour: They've become penpals with a Japanese couple who were camping near them. They were having a little trouble adjusting and the Cokers

"dug in" to help. That's how they became friends. Anyway, the young man said he'd like to keep in touch so Amy gave him their address, complete of course with Postal code. A few days after their arrival home, they received a letter from the young man telling them that "I look all over map, see no name POBIMO on Canada. Where you?"

A happy fortieth wedding anniversary to Earl and Ola Chamberlain of Norland on February 24. Their daughter, Rose, with her husband Hugh Higgs and their sons Randy and Howard, came up to celebrate from Mount Albert as well as daughter Catrina with her husband Richard Guioetto from Coboconk. Another caller was Isabel Johnston of Shadow Lake Road. Isabel's husband Andy phoned his well wishes as did the happy couple's son Ron Chamberlain, his wife Debbie, Fred and Karen with son Earl called from Whitby and another friend Edie Stockford. Beautiful flowers were wired from lifelong friends who reside in Newfoundland and have a cottage in Minden, the Bradbury family. It was a lovely day.

While on the subject of anniversaries: I'd like to say happy forty-ninth to my patient husband Bill, on March 19.

Some 28 local seniors travelled by bus on March 6 to Scarborough Town Centre. Everyone had a great day of shopping. The bus driver was very friendly and obliging even to driving the bus back to the front of Eatons Centre at 2:00 p.m. so that anyone having parcels could show them aboard and not have to carry them around. It was a thoughtful act and appreciated. Thanks also to the Norland Food Market for allowing the bus travellers to park their cars on the store parking lot for the day.

Welcome home from Nevada Mary and George Cowen. The folks arrived back on March 14.

Congratulations to Rose and Hugh Higgs who will renew their wedding vows on their twentieth anniversary at a Mount Albert Church on June 23.

Stay well and happy, call me at 454-2395.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Faulkner returned home on the weekend after a holiday in Florida. They accompanied daughter Yvonne and husband, Fred Brecht of Scarborough to Florida.
The funeral for Mrs. Cora Lake was held at Faith Tabernacle on Sunday, March 4. Pastor Campbell gave a comforting message and grandson Robert Lake and his daughter, Sharon, both of Peterborough, each gave a fitting eulogy to Grandma Lake. We shall really miss her!

Intended for last week

The community was shocked and saddened to learn that Paul Angiers passed away very suddenly on Monday evening, February 26. Paul had worked all day and had apparently been in good health. An apparent heart attack claimed his life. Paul was just forty years old, and leaves his wife, Cheryl and six-year-old twins, Andrew and Matthew. Sincere sympathy to all the family members who mourn the passing of Paul.
The Bill Baldwin farm home at Bexley was destroyed by fire last week.
Mrs. Joyce Kay entered hospital in Lindsay for surgery, on March 10.
Mrs. Rotha Bryant spent several days with son-in-law Max Greer, and grand children, Jennifer and Jeffery, at Green River last week.
Kerry Downes, Jamie Liscombe and Charlie

Windebank, all have returned following a holiday in Dominican Republic. Earl and Brenda Liscombe, Wayne and Audrey Downes are home after a vacation in Florida in the Downe's motor home.

Gordon and Peggy Weaver have been enjoying a vacation in Florida.

Sincere sympathy to Gwen Rutter whose brother died in England this week.
It's been a hectic week in our family for over a week. Grandma Cora Lake went into hospital on February 21 and had surgery on February 23. She had been doing very well. Shortly after, she developed heart problems and deteriorated throughout the afternoon.

Sadly, Grandma died.

She had enjoyed all the visitors and cards on her January 14th birthday, when she turned 90 and she was one of the "grand old ladies" of town. We shall all miss her very much. To make matters worse, my own mom entered hospital on February 24 after having a stroke. Mom is doing much better.

One day, while visiting the hospital, we met Cindy McCaull going in for x-rays after having her hand badly banged up. We had a talk with our former neighbour and on Thursday I talked with Marion Mastion, who was pushing sister Ollie in a wheelchair. My sister and I boarded with their Mom on King Street back in 1945-46. Makes one appreciate the gift of good health.

Mrs. Amy Timlick had surgery in Soldier's Memorial Hospital at Orillia last week. Get well soon, Amy!

Mrs. Olga, who suffered a stroke in December, is home with her family. Though in wheel chair, Olga is slowly improving. Get well wishes to you, Olga!

Sympathy goes out to family of the late Hazel Hoskin, a former neighbour, who passed away on February 16.

We have had some beautiful days lately although it has been cold.

The Thursday tea party was held in the auditorium. The Lady of Fatima Catholic Church of Minden provided the lunch and it was delicious. Along with our lunch we enjoyed some very nice music played by Mike and Connie Biagi, Frank Faulkner and Doris. The Residents appreciated it all, both lunch and music and they thank everyone who contributed to the happy afternoon.

Thursday evening we played Bingo with Ed Formenko calling the games. We thank him for coming and doing a good job.

Friday morning the auditorium was prepared for the World Day of Prayer which was held from 2 to 4 p.m. with many attending. A lovely tea was served after. The topic was Czechoslovakia. Father Parker of Minden Catholic Church gave a resume of the history of Czechoslovakia and their struggle to have peace and freedom in their own country. Several people read portions of the program and a group of ladies sang.
After dinner on Sunday as Myrtle O'Halloran was leaving the dining room she fell and broke her hip. We are sorry this happened and wish her a speedy recovery.

Chapel service was conducted by John Burgess with Alice Jones at the organ Sunday evening. There was a very good attendance considering so many were suffering from an assortment of ailments. Thank you Rev. Burgess and Alice, your efforts are appreciated.

Ruth Kellett came to see Mable Buttery on Saturday. Sunday Ron Newbatt and his daughter Kelsey came for a visit.

Norma Barnum and her mother, Clara Austin came back with us. Clara had fallen Saturday night and broken her arm.

The March wind doth blow, and blow and blow. And I'm sure the robin is in the barn waiting patiently for spring. Temperature-wise March came in like a lamb but with those tornado-like winds, for my money it is very lion-like. Lets hope it mellows and that the month goes out nice and easy.

The Dorset Seniors Club enjoyed an interesting film last Wednesday entitled "The Return of the Man From Snowy River". Quite entertaining, an Australian movie with lots of beautiful horses. In Helen Sutton's absence Nancy Morley did the honours. Thanks Nancy, it was great. Today is Bingo.

On Saturday, February 24 a lovely wedding was solemnized when Jennifer Morris and Chris Crawford were joined in Holy Matrimony at Knox United Church. The Rev. Susan Manning officiated. The bride was beautiful in traditional white and her maid of honour, Keri Aubin and bridesmaid, Julie Crawford in royal blue satin. The groom's attendants were his brother-in-law Sid Cornwell as best man and the bride's brother, Rick Morris as usher. The reception was held in the new Dorset Recreation Centre, which was beautifully decorated. Dancing followed the dinner with Disc Jockey supplying the music. The couple are honey-mooning in the Poconos in Pennsylvania after which they will reside in North Bay.

The funeral service for Hugh McEachern, who passed away on February 17 was held at the Addison Funeral Home in Huntsville. Refreshments were served at the Dorset Recreation Centre for family and friends after the service.

'Young at heart' make Games success

by NORMA HODGSON

The older adults of Haliburton County once again gathered at Deer Lodge for the annual Haliburton Senior Winter Games. The events on February 5 and March 5 saw a total of 185 "young-at-heart" seniors enjoy a full day of friendly competition and social interaction.

Arriving early in the morning they were treated to coffee and muffins by our genial hosts, the Teljeur family. The morning passed quickly with games of euchre, cribbage, bridge, bingo and the ever popular "deer races". A delicious roast beef dinner was served at noon before the serious competition began in bridge and euchre.

On February 5 the gold medals for bridge were won by Lenore and hadden Gillespie, with the silver going to Ursula Dymott and Thelda Weston. Ross Agnew and Vic Matthews were the bronze medal winners.

Euchre saw Olive Daniels and Verna Sawyer winning the gold, and Beulah Cowen and Greta Curry taking the silver. Third place winners receiving the bronze medals were Ethel MacDonald and Helen Dugan and the prize winner for the most lone hands was Anne Winger.

The first Winter Games of 1990 was a great success and many returned in March to again enjoy the hospitality of Deer Lodge. Winners that day in bridge were: gold medals to Jean Jackson and Jane Graham; silver to Mike Collins and Evelyn Morgan; bronze to Marjory Peel and Helen McCracken.

Charlotte Ruttan and Ken Wallace won the gold medals for euchre with Ruby Bird and Ruth Parkes winning the silver. The bronze went to Margaret Bull and Bill Kleinschmidt, with Myrna McCarthy having the most lone hands.

At the shuffleboard table in February, a gold medal went to Gladys Peck. In March the gold went to Karen Henderson and Catherine July with Gladys Peck and Lil Parker winning the silver.

The Haliburton Senior Games will be officially opened on April 20 at the Haliburton County Home Support Services luncheon at the Stanhope Community Hall. Registration forms will be available at that time. Games begin on May 14. This will be a big year for the Games as Actifest '90 will be held in London in August. All adults older than 55 are welcome to participate.

To reserve your place at the luncheon, please call 457-2941. For more information you may contact Dorothy Parshall at the Drop-In Centre (457-2171).

Meeting on March 20 to explain new rules for loggers, skidders

by BRIAN LAWRENCE

The Ontario Ministry of Skills Development recently announced that loggers working as cutters and skidder operators in the province's forests will now have to be trained and certified. Under this policy, employees hired before the first of last October will have to be certified by October 1, 1990 and new employees will have one year from the date they were hired.

Regulations under the Occupational Health and Safety Act have been amended so that employers engaged in cut-and-skid logging operations are now required to set up and maintain a training program that will enable their employees to comply with the Training Standards outlined in a document published by the Ministry of Skills Development. These standards consist of various skills in nine different training units. A cutter-skidder operator certificate will be available for an employee who has demonstrated an ability to satisfy all of the skills identified in the training units. Accreditation is also available for those taking only the cutter or skidder operator portions of the program.

These regulations are administered by the Ministry of Labour and compliance with them will be required to carry on cut-and-skid operations. To comply with these regulations, employers are required to obtain copies of the Training Standards document and to register each employee that is to be certified. Each company is also to designate someone as a "signing authority" who is responsible for the quality of the training program. This person (generally the company owner) is to apply to the Ministry of Skills Development for signing authority. The employer is also responsible for finding a competent person to act as a trainer for his employees. As compliance with each of the skills is demonstrated, both the employee and the trainer sign their names. The signing authority's signature is required at the end of each training unit. When all training units have been completed, a trainee will qualify for a certificate.

The need for such a systematic training program throughout the province of Ontario has existed for some time. It has been recognized that there are a number of hazards associated with logging operations and that something was required to improve the skill levels of loggers so that there would be a decrease in the number and severity of bush-related accidents. To meet this need, the cutter/skidder operator program was initiated.

To assist local logging companies in getting involved with the certification program, a meeting has been scheduled for Tuesday, March 20 at the Haliburton Legion at 7:30 p.m. A representative from the Forest Products Accident Prevention Association will be on hand to provide further details and to answer questions. Information packets, training standards, registration forms, training reports and applications for signing authority will be handed out. All persons using chainsaws to fell trees on the job are encouraged to attend this very important meeting.

Council hears concerns

Monday Jean Hewitt and Anna Gordon took Pearl Lyle out for dinner so pearl could use her Christmas present.

Evelyn Coleman came Monday for our Bible Study Hour. One of the women we studied was Delilah who had Sampson's hair cut so he lost his strength. Thank you Evelyn.

Linda English left Monday morning for a three-week vacation in Florida. We sincerely hope she has a happy holiday.

Residents Council was held in the craft room. There was a very good attendance. Several problems were discussed and decisions made. It was a constructive meeting. We were sorry Rheta Jones was unable to attend.

Tuesday I went to Peterborough to see my sister. May is home from the hospital but she has a long way to go yet to be herself.

Judges pick 'the best of the best'

GUILD NOTES

by: ELENE J. FREER

ON FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, more than 35 people attended the opening festivities for Celebration '90: The Best of Members' Show.

The presentation of awards was the culmination of a day of critical examination by the three judges, Beth Barry, Beverly Williams and Chuck Burns, and for the participating members, months of creative planning and work. The awards were enthusiastically presented by Guild President, Pearl Foster.

Recipients of the "Award of Merit" were: Jo-Anne Critchley Browne for her brooch "House Plans" and necklace, "Personal Treasure"; Phyllis Woods for "Nested", a set of six nesting boxes made from an alder burl; Sharon Archer for "Purple Haze", a handwoven and knitted sweater; Joan Hoad for her watercolour painting entitled "August Garden"; Jeanette Edwardes who submitted a mug set with a floral motif; and Lucy Slykerman for her Irish linen hand towels woven in False Damask; Gary Chapman for capturing the popular "Minden Barn"; and Ed Hancock for his watercolour painting, "Mountain Lake Blue Mist." The "Judges' Choice Award" went to Sid Brinkman and Wendy Bateman for "A Little Bed for Big People", a miniature willow bed complete with bedding!

"The Pat Irwin Memorial Award for Best in Clay" was given to Barbara Peel for her porcelain jewellery box with a crystalline glazed lid.

Lesley Tusch received "The Eagle Lake Women Award for New Craftsperson" for her first acrylic painting entitled, "Butterfly".

Three Guild members were honoured with "The Ethel Curry Award for Excellence". Receiving this award were: Don W. MacLeod for his carved loons, Michael Butz for designing and building his first canoe, "WaterLilly", and Jamie Woodman for a quilted tapestry, "For Grama", a contemporary interpretation of an old family photograph. Congratulations to all the award winners and to all the members participating in Celebration '90.

The following is the judge's statement about the show.

"There was rich diversity of media shown here and this results in a good possibility for the exchange of ideas and learning new ways of looking at your own media.

"We looked for an overall feeling and concept in each piece then how well this was carried off. Sometimes, many good ideas are lost in the technical problems or the final finishing (such as matting or framing) is rushed. This leaves a work looking lost and unfulfilled.

"The award winners showed exceptional control and understanding of their chosen media. There are a number of exciting possibilities where people have taken chances and tried experimenting with new ways of looking at their media.

"This show is full of enthusiasm and your care and efforts show through."

In other Guild news, Ken MacLeod writes: "Stephen Patrick's writing course at Sir Sandford Fleming College was unfortunately cancelled and we thought that those who signed up for it, or other interested would be creative writers might want to get together.

"Envisioned is a loosely structured forum where ideas can be exchanged, encourage given, assignments suggested and an audience provided to hear each other's efforts. No charge, just a welcome!"

Betty Morrow, a long-standing member of the Guild, is recovering from injuries sustained in a car accident. The Guild sends Betty its warmest wishes for a healthy recovery. Cards and letters may be sent to Betty, care of the Kingston General Hospital, 76 Stuart Street, Kingston, Ontario, K7L 2V7.

Over 30,000 people are expected to attend the 30th annual Mariposa Folk Festival to be held at Molson Park in Barrie from June 22 to 24. Mariposa is currently accepting applications from craft people working in all media to participate in this festival of music, dance, crafts and other art forms. Application forms are available at the Railyard End Gallery. Application deadline is March 26, 1990.

Realtors want rate cut

on
REAL ESTATE

THE CANADIAN REAL ESTATE Association (CREA) has called for a cut in interest rates following the federal budget.

CREA Vice President Bill Hopkins says the Finance Minister's plan to reduce the deficit through cuts in projected spending is a major step in the right direction.

"We would have preferred a more substantial deficit reduction in the current fiscal year," says Hopkins. "However the tougher fiscal policy Mr. Wilson has put in place should allow some room for interest rates to move downward."

Hopkins says such a move would benefit the government through a reduction in the cost of carrying its deficit. "Our association demonstrated in its pre-budget submission that a decline of one percentage point in interest rates would save Canadian taxpayers at least $1.4 billion annually in interest payments."

Lower interest rates would also benefit every mortgage holder in Canada. However, it would take a drop of two full percentage points to make a significant impact on affordability for first-time home buyers. "We're a long way from that," says Hopkins.

In respect to affordability, The association has a proposal before the Finance Minister to expand the use of RRSP holdings in the mortgages of plan holders who are first-time home buyers. Hopkins urged serious consideration of this proposal as part of a package to assist more Canadians in their attempt to enter the home ownership market.

Hopkins regrets the necessity for a reduction in CMHC's social housing budget of $51-million over the next two years. "These cuts are a challenge to the private sector to be more innovative in responding to social housing needs."

CREA has a blueprint for private sector action as a result of a symposium it sponsored with CMHC. The blueprint deals with such matters as tapping vacant existing stock for social housing purposes.

"If we succeed in lowering interest rates and reducing the deficit, Canada will have more resources to direct toward affordable housing."

CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF STANHOPE PUBLIC NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of the Municipal Corporation of the Township of Stanhope proposes to enact a by-law to stop-up, close and convey to the abutting property owners those parts of original shore road allowances set out and described as follows:

FIRSTLY: All and Singular those certain parcels or tracts of land and premises situate, lying and being in the Township of Stanhope in the County of Haliburton and being composed of part of the 66' original shore road allowance lying in front of Lots 5 and 6, Concession 11, being more particularly described as Parts 4, 5 and 6 on a Plan deposited in the Registry Office for the Registry Division of the County of Haliburton as Plan 19R 4668.

THE PROPOSED BY-LAW will come before the said council for consideration at its regular meeting at the Municipal Office in the Township of Stanhope on the 11th day of April, 1990 at the hour of 11:00 a.m., and at that time, the council will hear in person or by his/her counsel, solicitor or agent any person who claims that his land will be prejudicially affected and who applied to be heard.

DATED: February 22, 1990.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORY of William Peck who passed away March 13, 1986. My heart still aches in sadness. And secret tears still flow. What it meant to lose you, No one will ever know. When the days are sad and lonely. And everything goes wrong, I seem to hear you whisper, Cheer up and carry on. Each time I see your picture, You seem to smile and say, Don't worry, I'm only resting. We'll meet again someday. Deeply missed by his wife Gladys. 32-P-14
